LONDON, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press) The Near East situation continued to present disturbing potentialities today, with the revolutionary Greek army at Adrianople declaring it would not retire, and with the victorious Turkish army concentrating at Asiad and anxious to reach Constantinople and protect the Turks in Thrace. The uncertainty was added to by the report that the allies are not generally considered to have sufficient armed forces to control either the Turks or the Greeks.

The British cabinet met this afternoon to watch the proceedings at Mudania, where the armistice conference was held.

TWO DIE OF POISON

Chauffeur and Maid Found Dead in Kitchen of Gloucester Residence

GLoucester, Oct. 9.—A report on the analysis of the contents of the stomachs of Zella T. Zelsloft, a maid, and Harry Devine, a chauffeur, employed by Miss Caroline Sinkler of Philadelphia, was awaited by the police today before they determined the scope of their investigations into how the two were poisoned last Saturday night. The bodies were found in the kitchen of Miss Sinkler's summer home at Eastern Point yesterday by other servants, who with Miss Zelsloft and Devine had participated in a party Saturday evening at which liquor was freely consumed.

Medical Examiner Philip Moore, after performing an autopsy, said death undoubtedly had been caused by poison.

Miss Sinkler and her servants were to have returned to Philadelphia today. The police learned that William Elkins, a gardener, and Helen Gorham, a parlor maid, went shopping with the Zelsloft woman and the chauffeur Saturday night. On the return trip Devine, on the outskirts of the city, stopped only to reappear shortly with a quart bottle of whiskey, the police said. Arriving home, the four entered the kitchen and there, according to the servants' stories, drinks were served.

Later Elkins and Miss Gorham left Devine and Miss Zelsloft alone in the kitchen. Next morning they were lying side by side on the kitchen floor.

CLIFFORD HAYES ACCUSED OF KILL- ING REV. DR. HALL AND MRS. MILLS

19-Year-Old Admirer of Pearl Bahmer,
Who Found Bodies, Arrested and
Formally Charged With First Degree Murder—Chum Declares Slaying Result of Mistaken Identity

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 9.—Clifford Hayes, 19 years old, admirer of Pearl Bahmer, who found the bodies of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, choir singer, was arrested today and formally charged with first degree murder.

Raymond Schneider, who was with the Bahmer girl when the bodies were found, was held as a material witness. Prosecutors Rockman and Stricker of Middlesex and Somerset counties say Schneider signed a 300-word statement accusing Hayes of the crime.

According to Schneider's statement, the double slaying was the result of mistaken identity. He had gone out with Hayes on the night of the murders, he said, trailing a man who accompanied the Bahmer girl. Seeing a couple beneath a crabapple tree, he said, Hayes opened fire. Announcement of the arrests was made at 11:45 by Prosecutor Stricker.

The announcement issued jointly by Prosecutors Stricker of Middlesex county and Rockman of Somerset county, read: "Upon information in the prosecutor's office obtained from Raymond Schneider and other witnesses, we feel obliged under the circumstances to prefer a charge of murder against one Clifford Hayes. Raymond Schneider will be held as a material witness, awaiting further developments in the case."

"Process will be issued out of Somerset county, where it appears the crime was committed, and consequently the prisoners will be detained in the Somerset county jail."

"The prosecutors would not say whether the arrest of Hayes had eliminated the Hall and Mills families from further consideration. No further arrests were contemplated for the present, they said."

Mrs. Joseph P. Lavallee of 236 Branch street and Mrs. Arthur Alford of 135 Fletcher street, are both in a serious condition at St. John's hospital as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident which occurred on the Lowell-Lawrence boulevard last evening.

The women's husbands are also confined to the hospital with painful injuries, but it is not believed that their condition is serious.

Mrs. Lavallee is suffering from a fractured skull and this afternoon it was reported she was unconscious and very little hope was being entertained for her recovery. In the case of Mrs. Alford, there is a possible fractured skull and probable internal injuries, while the woman is also suffering from an injury to the shoulder. Mrs. Lavallee sustained a broken shoulder and fractured ribs, while Mr. Alford has several fractured ribs and a bruised shoulder.

The accident occurred at about the same spot where Robert Busby, another resident of this city, lost his life in an automobile collision last Friday evening. As far as could be learned, Mrs. Alford and Mrs. Lavallee were on their way to Lawrence in a Ford automobile owned and operated by Mr. Lavallee. When a spot was reached in front of the Methuen armory, an automobile owned and operated by Manuel S. Martin of 51 Driscoll street, Pembury, came along on its way to this city. When the two machines met, the Martin car struck the left front wheel of the Ford and tore it off, causing the Ford to turn turtle. The two women were pinned beneath the car, while the two men were thrown into the road.

Word of the accident was immediately sent to the Methuen police station and a few minutes later Officers Joseph Hutchinson and Thomas McCarron appeared on the scene in an automobile and conveyed the injured people to St. John's hospital in this city. In the car with Mr. Martin were his wife, his son and his mother and all escaped without injury.

Passengers of these countries in Europe where black bread is eaten usually have exceptionally good teeth.

Harry Sutphen Held at Ja-

liam Biermann

Shooting Followed Quarrel
as Pair Were Riding Home
in Taxicab

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Harry Sutphen, owner and editor of the Queensboro Bulletin, of Jamaica, shot and killed William Biermann, a bartender, early today in front of Sutphen's apartment house in Jamaica, the police announced.

According to the police, Sutphen and Biermann, after spending most of the night at a hotel in Jamaica, were driving toward Sutphen's home in a taxicab, and the shooting followed a quarrel. The driver of the taxicab, Martin Siebert, Jr., told the police that both men had been drinking and that Sutphen had accused Biermann of abusing him.

Sutphen suddenly drew a pistol, Siebert said, and fired one shot. He then commanded Siebert to take him to a hospital. Siebert informed a policeman and Sutphen was taken into custody.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 9.—Bluenose, international fishermen's sailing champion and winner Saturday of the first of the elimination races arranged for selection of the Nova Scotia defender to meet the American challenger off Gloucester, Mass., this month, was the last of the four entries to cross the starting line in the second race today.

Bluenose crossed at 10:05:51, Margaret K. Smith at 10:01:03; Canada at 10:01:25 and Bluenose at 10:01:51.

Fifteen minutes after the start had been made, however, Bluenose had worked up into third position, overtaking Canada. The Smith had snatched the lead from Mahaska. The wind was freshening.

Two Boards of Election Commis- sioners Are On Duty at City Hall

The Old Board and the New Are Both on Hand to Conduct Registration for State Election—Each Board
Claims Right to Occupancy—No Casualties Thus Far
—Old Board Waives No Rights and Insists Upon
the Invalidity of Second and Third Removals

Two boards of election commissioners—on the original board of Messrs. McOsker, Allard, Braden and Maguire, fired three times by Mayor George H. Brown and twice reinstated since last Thursday, and the other, the temporary board appointed by His Honor, consisting of Messrs. Cloutier, O'Dowd, Kierman and Gould, met in the commission's rooms on the basement floor of city hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon to conduct the first registration session prior to the state election.

Each board claimed a right to occupancy, although there was no surface friction.

"We are here to stay," declared Hugh C. McOsker of the old commission. "We waive no rights and insist upon the invalidity of our second, and third removals."

Chairman Joseph A. Cloutier of the temporary board also voiced a similar intention on the part of his fellow-commissioners.

While the city is equipped with two commissions, the real interest in the matter is in the fact that the original commission has filed a new demand for a public hearing, but insists that it has not been removed after reinstatement Friday night.

BOOM SCHOOL ATHLETICS

Speakers Urge High School
Students to Back Up Athletic Teams

The entire student body of the Lowell high school assembled in the Cyrus W. Irish Auditorium at 8:15 this morning for the first time since the opening of the new high school, and listened to enthusiastic addresses by Benjamin S. Pouzner, headmaster, Henry H. Harris, coach Jas. Linton and others on the awakening of school spirit in athletics and all other athletic connected with athletic life. The meeting was arranged at the request of the Lowell Ad club for the purpose of instilling in the students the necessity of backing up the athletic teams which represent the school throughout the year. The hall was taxed to capacity and judging by the ready response on the part of the audience, the present season will witness the greatest display of moral support in the history of the school.

It was George Wood of the Ad club who first conceived the idea of placing Lowell on the horizon of sport and at a recent meeting of the members of the club, it was decided to back up the high school in its athletic events in every way possible. Today's meeting marked the first step in that direction and with the co-operation of headmaster Harris, weekly gatherings of a similar character will be held in the high school hall. Mr. Harris presided at this morning's meeting and appealed to the students to get behind the teams and give them an added incentive to victory. He congratulated the Ad club for its foresight in realizing the necessity for school spirit, and called upon Coach James Linton of the football team for brief remarks. Linton confirmed his talk to the football team, saying that the cheers of supporters had much to do with the team's success. He expressed regret at the unfortunate injury to "Peet" Sheehan in last Saturday's game and paid the star backfield man a worthy tribute.

Charles J. Keyes of the Ad club was then called upon to lead the school in the singing of the Lowell booster song, written by Edward J. Conney. It was first sung by the boys and then by the girls. At the request of Mr. Harris, the senior class sang the song unassisted and made a great impression. The entire body then took up the chorus and with the assistance of Mr. Keyes rendered the song in spirited fashion, giving every evidence that they had grasped the meaning of the all important enthusiasm.

Ben Pouzner was introduced and gave a 20-minute address on the enthusiasm necessary to the success, not only of athletic teams, but also literary clubs, musical clubs and debating societies. He emphasized the fact that good students are, above all, essential to the success of a school and while athletics should be given a boom, the educational part should not be left out of the picture.

ASSESSORS GIVE OUT LIST OF CITY'S HEAVIEST TAXPAYERS

Names of Individuals Paying More Than $1000 and Corporations Paying More
Than $10,000—Tremont & Suffolk
Heads Corporation List—Stevens
Family Will Pay $33,507

The Stevens trust, with extensive real estate holdings in Central, Market and Middle streets, heads the 1922 list of Lowell tax payers. Under this year's rate of $30.60 per $1000 of valuation, the Stevens family will pay $33,507.

Next in line is Arthur G. Tollard, with a tax bill amounting to $24,326.15. J. Murray Howe and Arthur Wills of Boston, trustees, with the Hildreth building and former Bigelow Carpet property in their control, must pay $23,590.77.

Other heavy taxes are assessed upon individuals as follows: Margaret W. Merrill, 157 Nesmith street, $20,101.05; John H. Harrington, 2 Park street, $14,351.10; Percy Guilford, $13,797.54; Charles E. and William J. Bradley of Lawrence, owners of the Bradley building, $12,905.02; William E. Vaughan and George W. Flagg of Boston, trustees for Wyman's Exchange, $11,575.86; Lowell Building Trust, $11,022.91; heirs of William B. Spaulding, $10,163.83; George H. White of Boston, $9,915.30.

Among the corporations, the Tremont & Suffolk heads the list with a tax of $10,000.00.

U. S. Warship Ordered to Near East

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A Central News despatch from Gibraltar today says the admiral and officers of the United States dreadnought Utah, who are touring Spanish cities, have been recalled to the warship, which has been ordered to proceed immediately to the Near East.

A Gibraltar despatch on Oct. 3, reported the arrival there of the Utah, with Vice Admiral A. T. Long, commander-in-chief of the European station. It was stated he would await the arrival of the cruiser Pittsburgh, which sailed from Philadelphia, Oct. 2, and which would then become the flagship of the American naval forces in European waters, proceeding to the Near East, while the Utah would return to American waters.

MRS. MacSWINEY AND OTHER SPEAKERS PLEAD FOR SUPPORT OF IRISH REPUBLIC

Large Audience Greeted Speakers at Associate Hall Last Evening—Addresses by Peter MacSwiney, Miss Kearns and Leo J. Madden—About $1000 in Contributions and Pledges

Despite the unpleasant weather of last evening, an audience of about 1200 assembled in Associate hall, where Mrs. Terence MacSwiney and Peter MacSwiney, wife and brother of the late lord mayor of Cork, Nurse Lynda Mary Kearns of the Irish republican army and Leo J. Madden of New York, delivered stirring addresses on subjects intimately related to the cause they espouse, the recognition of the Irish republic.

Mrs. MacSwiney and her party arrived at the hall shortly after 8 o'clock following a hurried trip over the road from Lawrence where a similar meeting had been held in the afternoon, and when the party entered the hall, the applause which greeted it was deafening. The stage platform was appropriately decorated with American and Irish republican flags, ferns and potted plants, which surrounded the framed pictures of Eamon de Valera, Patrick Pearse and Terence MacSwiney. Michael J. Sharkey of this city, president and introduced the several speakers, lauding the names of Patrick Pearse, Terence MacSwiney, Harry Boland, Cathal Brugha and others equally prominent in Irish affairs of the past. At the mention of each

Courts and Collins told Boland at that time that never would he sign an oath swearing allegiance to a British king. It was at this juncture that the object of the meeting, the removal of the remark that brought his removal from the gathering. Mr. MacSwiney then proceeded to tell of the manner in which Michael Collins and Harry Boland were killed, and concluded by saying that such meetings as the one held last night were a direct answer to England when that country thought that a Free State government in Ireland would pacify the Irish abroad.

Miss Kearns Speaks

Miss Kearns followed Mr. MacSwiney as speaker and gave a lengthy talk on recent affairs in Ireland. She read from documents, showing the vast difference between the Irish republican proclamation of 1916 and the Free State treaty of the present day.

Mrs. MacSwiney and myself have come to America for two reasons," she said, "just to try to tell you the truth about the state of affairs in Ireland. Last December the news was flashed over the wires of the world that Ireland was given a free state. Ireland has not her freedom. That is only the beautiful illustrated cover of a very much as anything else that brought England around. The people can really do more here than at home." During the evening, solos were rendered by John McMahon and Miss Margaret Dean, while Miss Margaret Mahoney entertained with a stirring recitation on Ireland. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. MacSwiney and her party retired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Sharkey, 617 School street.

OBSERVED ANNUAL COMMUNION SUNDAY

The annual communion Sunday of Bishop Delany Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, was observed yesterday morning when a large delegation of the members marched from the council rooms to St. Michael's church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Shaw, pastor of St. Michael's, and Rev. Francis J. Mullin assisted at communion. Following the services, a communion breakfast was vile book. We have a saying in the west of Ireland—never take the book by the cover. I say to you—don't take the treaty by its cover. It is not freedom, nor has it the shadow of freedom. We say that if one nation must have, at its head the king of another country, and that king can call the parliament together, dictate to it and dissolve it, that country has not freedom. If the people of a nation must take oath of allegiance and faithfulness to the king of a foreign power, must be faithful to his heirs and successors, that country has not freedom, and not alone has the present generation not freedom, but that generation is selling the future generation into slavery.

"We know that if a country willingly takes upon itself to keep and maintain a government general a representative of a foreign power, that country has not freedom. We know that if a nation gives to any foreign power the control of its five ports and keeps and maintains an army of occupation in these ports, that country has not freedom. These are some of the things Ireland has been offered by way of freedom and we have refused them. Leo J. Madden of New York was introduced at the conclusion of Mrs. Kearns' address and made a strenuous and fruitful appeal for funds. That his appeal brought results is witnessed by the amount collected and pledged. He announced that Miss Elizabeth Roche will act as local treasurer of the fund.

Mrs. MacSwiney introduced Mrs. MacSwiney was next introduced but owing to the lateness of the hour, her talk was very brief. She thanked the people of Lowell for their generous support of the republican cause for which her husband gave his life. She spoke briefly in the original Gaelic language and made a great impression on those who understood her. To reporters she afterwards said:

"The republic of Ireland is still in existence as it was before the treaty when President de Valera was at its head. We are against the treaty because it does not embody the great ideals of the republic and because, through the treaty, England hoped to divide the Irish people and then take advantage of the situation. England was afraid of America when Lloyd George begged for peace. They could not have dared to carry on the fight because they were paying their soldiers with money borrowed from America. You see, they were playing the Black and Tan a pound a day.

"There is not a civil war in Ireland, because England is still fighting in Ireland through the medium of the Free State soldiers.

"The people in Ireland are not informed of the true conditions in their own land because there is an armed guard stationed at every printing press which compels our newspapers to publish only that which suits best. How can the people of America help the cause of the republic? They can help it by joining Irish societies which stick to the ideals of the republic and by keeping up the boycott against British goods. It is that, as

CONSTANTINE DECLARES ABDICATION REAL

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(By the Associated Press) Former King Constantine of Greece in an interview with the Petit Parisien in Palermo, informed the correspondent that his abdication was real, as he desired to get out of the line of sight. He added that he intended to come to Paris at some later date.

Answering an inquiry as to where he intended to live, Constantine said he would stay in Palermo for two or three months and then go to Paris. He added that his plans might be altered if he could not leave the villa which he wants.

In reply to a question whether his abdication was final, Constantine said he abandoned the throne in 1917 in obedience to allied pressure, but without abdicating, and therefore remained king.

"Now, however," he added, "King Constantine has abdicated and one abdicated definitely. King Constantine, besides, intends to retire and remain out of public life."

served in the rooms. Entertainment was furnished and remarks made by Arthur J. O'Neill, Faithful Navigator, Andrew Molloy, P.E.N. and John B. Hart, G. K.

The feature address of the occasion was delivered by James C. Reilly, assistant district attorney. Mr. Reilly spoke at length on Knights of Columbus activities in Middlesex county, saying that its members exerted a wonderful influence on the community in general and congratulating the members present on their showing yesterday.

Charles J. Landers, P.D.D. was chairman of the committee in charge of yesterday's affair, assisted by Sir Knights Edward E. Slattery, J. Eugene Thomas Tobin and Peter Fairington.

This wonderfully comprehensive picture of the burning of Smyrna was taken from a seaplane. It successfully blazed the trail for an aerial city view at its height. The picture shows an unbroken wall of flame and smoke, two miles long, and the allied warships riding at anchor in the harbor. NEA rushed these photographs of the Smyrna horror by courier and airplane from Constantinople to London. There they were turned over to another messenger who brought them to America on the liner Aquitania for NEA Service.

CHEERS FOR THE GIANTS

Thousands Acclaim World Champs — "Thanks, Folks," Says McGraw

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (By the Associated Press.)—Thousands of the spectators crowded about the Giants clubhouse after the game, cheering the victorious Nationals after the fashion of a college football crowd. They laughed at the policemen who tried to drive them away and called for each of the Giant players.

First they howled for Arthur Neft. Arlie came to the door in his bathrobe. They gave him three cheers and shouldered for Groh. And so on until every one of the Giants had appeared. Unanimously, the young Giant centerfielder, whose work in the last two games of the series was a big factor for the winners, came in for a great share of this hero worship.

McGraw, as he left the Giant dug-out after the game, was surrounded by a band of fans. They carried him to the clubhouse and before permitting him to go in and congratulate his players, insisted that he make a speech. He said two words: "Thanks, folks," and went inside.

CATHOLIC NEWS.

According to an announcement made at St. Peter's church yesterday, His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell will come to that church on Thursday, October 26 and will administer the rite of confirmation to a class of about 400 children. More than 600 members of the church Holy Name society received communion at 8.30 o'clock mass. Rev. D. J. Keicher, P.D., was the celebrant and he was assisted in the giving of communion by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan and Rev. Peter T. Linehan. Rev. John M. Manion was the celebrant at the 11 o'clock mass. He also preached the sermon.

The celebrant of the 11 o'clock mass at the Immaculate Conception church was Rev. William W. Noonan, O.M.I., who has recently returned from Rome. Rev. Martin Norton preached the sermon. Rev. Owen P. McQuaid was the celebrant at 8 o'clock mass and was assisted in the giving of communion to the Holy Name society by Very Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe. Devotions will be held at the church every evening this week at 7.30 o'clock.

Rev. William P. Brennan was the celebrant of the 8 o'clock and 11 o'clock masses at St. Margaret's. He gave two interesting sermons on the condition of the starving people in Catholic Austria and Poland. Rev. A. F. O'Brien celebrated the 8 and 7.30 masses, while the pastor, Rev. Charles J. Galligan celebrated the children's mass in the new chapel at 3 o'clock. October devotions will be held on Wednesday and Friday nights of the present week at 7.30 o'clock. It was announced that the parish visitation which has been going on for two weeks or more will be completed within a short time.

More than 100 members of Bishop Delany assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, received communion at the 8 o'clock mass in St. Michael's. Rev. John J. Shaw, the pastor, celebrated the mass. Rev. Francis J. Mullin assisted in giving communion. Rev. James P. Lynch celebrated the 11 o'clock mass with Rev. Thomas J. Heaney preaching the sermon and making the announcements.

It was announced that on Friday afternoon and evening a cake sale will be held in Gannon's store, the proceeds of which will go to the altar society. The charity guild will meet for guild hall at 7.30 o'clock. Devotions will be held in the church on Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7.30 o'clock.

At St. Patrick's church on Thursday morning at 8 o'clock a requiem mass for the repose of the soul of the late pastor, Rt. Rev. Wm. O'Brien will be celebrated. Rev. Thomas J. McDonough celebrated the 11 o'clock mass and Rev. Dr. Supple, D.D. was celebrant of the 8.30 and 9.30 masses. Rev. Joseph A. Curtin celebrated the 7 o'clock mass at which the Holy Name society received communion. October devotions will be held every evening this week at 7.30 o'clock.

The Junior and senior Holy Name societies of the Sacred Heart church received communion at the 7.30 o'clock mass with Rev. Bernard F. Fisher, O.M.I., the celebrant. He was assisted by Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I. After the mass the senior society held a banquet breakfast in the school hall.

The 8.30 children's mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Fletcher, while the 9.30 and 11 o'clock masses were celebrated by Rev. Francis Barry. October devotions will be held every night this week at 7.30 o'clock. The Holy Name society will attend communion in a body at the 7.30 mass next Sunday.

It was announced at St. Columba's that 150 children had been confirmed at the exercises held last Thursday. Rev. George Fox, O.M.I., celebrated the 10.30 o'clock mass and brought the 40 hours devotion to a close. Rev. James P. Somers celebrated the 9 o'clock mass and Rev. Patrick J. Italy, the pastor, celebrated the 7.30 o'clock mass.

$185,000 CARGO FOR NEAR EAST

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The Sangu, the first relief ship from Philadelphia to carry food and medical supplies to the devastated regions of Smyrna and the near east, arrived at Wednesday. Local flour mills yesterday worked all day to prevent the delay of the sailing. The cargo, worth approximately $185,000, will be distributed chiefly to the orphanages in the stricken district.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color. These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.—Adv.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By the Theatres' Own Press Agents.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"A Scene in a Russian Village," with Katouneka as the star, will be the big feature of the present week's bill at the B. F. Keith's theatre. There are five persons in the company—three men and two women—and the act is a direct offspring of the famous "Chaube Scuris," which has so delighted New York for the past six months. All of the actors in the piece are straight Russians, who have most marvelous adventures in escaping from the soviet government and getting to this country.

ASTHMA
No cure for it, but welcome relief is often brought by—
VICKS
VAPORUB
Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

The act is a true picture of old Russian life, with its odd scenes. There is comedy, singing and dancing in it.

We don't need to be told very much about Sandy Shaw, who is the second feature of the bill. Shaw is a Scottish comedian, and he is giving his own songs and stories this year. His assortment is a varied one. His characteristics are rated very highly, while the atmosphere of Auld Scotland which he throws about the entire act will be very keenly appreciated.

A bill of musical comedy called "Typical, Typical Tales," will be introduced by Lou Miller and Alice Bradford, a team which has made its name synonymous with the best that vaudeville holds. Their voices are of real musical quality, and their novelty act is a bill of musical comedy.

Mildred Reed and Harold Selman will present a novelty skit, with songs, called "On the Roof." The title furnishes a splendid core for an act which is lively all the way through. If there is such a thing as a three-act, then Jack Adams and the Thompson Sisters will give it—scored for good music. They use saxophones, marimbanones, banjos and their voices, and they don't fail to introduce some comedy.

Some remarkable acrobatic feats are performed by the Wedleys. They have a special setting called "In the Moonlight," and it is said to be wonderfully fascinating. Jean and Arthur Keeley will give a bright act called "Fun in a Sporting Goods Store."

THE STRAND

Lincoln J. Carter's great melodramatic success of the stage, "The Fast Mail," which was recently adapted for the screen, will be shown at the Strand as the headliner in a program of rare excellence, starting with matinee today. The reason for such an extraordinary bill is because Manager Torgan is trying, in a small way, to make the fifth anniversary week of this theatre one long to be remembered. "The Fast Mail" is without an extended engagement at the Strand as the biggest thriller that the screen has ever given the public. Don't miss it. Then there is Gladys Walton, the greatest and since Mary Pickford, in her newest film offering,

"The Trouper," as well as the usual comedy and Weekly. You will agree with us that this offering is most exceptional.

RIALTO THEATRE

"Ashamed of Parents," a Warner Brothers production which tells the story of a young college man, who after a courtship with a society belle, is ashamed to reveal to her that his father is a simple cobbler, is the feature of the screen booking at the Rialto. Theatrical this afternoon. Neal Hart in "Rangeland," is another extra good picture in the same production. There is also a comedy, "No Vacancies," an episode of "In the Days of Buffalo Bill" and the Pathe News.

MERRIMACK SQ. THEATRE

"Broadway Rose," the glittering, fascinating production of New York life with the beautiful and talented Miss Murray in the title role, opened yesterday in an extended engagement at the Merrimack Square theatre yesterday with capacity houses the rule at every performance. It is one of the most successful and wholly alluring productions ever presented here. As an added attraction, the management has secured Carl Huchins, noted baritone, who sings appropriate selections during the showing of the photoplay.

GRACE CHURCH MEN'S CLUB

The Grace Church Men's club will open its 1922-1923 season tomorrow evening with a dinner, business meeting and address by Hon. John Jacob Rogers. The congressman will speak on "Current Events in Washington," and the general public is invited to hear him. He will speak directly after the business meeting which should be finished by 7.30 o'clock.

WAMESIT STAFF ASSOCIATION

President Freeman Lightowler occupied the chair at the meeting of Wamesit Staff association, which was held yesterday in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street. Reports of committees were submitted, routine business was transacted and it was announced that a drill and class initiation will be held in the near future.

STRANGLING NEW ENGLAND

Utterly astounding were the revelations brought out at the hearing before the Interstate Commerce commission at the state house on Friday, relative to the damaging effect of the railroad discrimination against the port of Boston.

It seems passing strange that our railroads and shipping interests have not made a protest loud enough to direct public attention strongly against this unjust treatment of Massachusetts and the people and industries of Massachusetts. It is easy now to realize why the New England manufacturers are at a disadvantage in competition with those further south. Present conditions are such that relief must be secured or else the ships of commerce will be deserted by the ships of commerce.

Now it appears that the Canadian and other lines that run passenger vessels from Boston to Europe are seriously thinking of dropping Boston as a port of destination because they cannot carry cargoes of exports on the return trip. In many cases they have to purchase sand or ballast or use water, whereas they formerly had sufficient grain to serve the purpose.

It is said that the fault lies with the business men of Boston and New England because for financial reasons they ship exports by the cheapest routes. That is a necessity as every business man wants at least equal advantages in meeting competition. It must be remembered that in many lines of business the margin between success and failure would be more than covered by the railroad differentials operating against the port of Boston.

This is a matter for congress to deal with if it be not satisfactorily settled by the Interstate Commerce commission, which has obtained all the more important information bearing upon the subject at the hearings held in Boston last week. Another hearing will be held at Washington in November when, perhaps, additional testimony will be given to show the ruinous effect of railroad rate discrimination on the shipment of exports to the port of Boston.

In addition to the direct effect of the differentials, there is an indirect which is equally detrimental to the business of the port of Boston. Here is an example of how it works: Charles R. Baldwin, transportation manager for the United Shoe Machinery company testified that his company prefers to ship its goods from Boston rather than New York for the reason that it costs from $150,000 to $200,000 more per year to ship by the latter port. But, on account of the lack of shipping at Boston, they were compelled to ship from New York despite the extra cost. Various other instances of this kind were brought out and all strengthened the arguments against the differentials as wholly unjustifiable and ruinous to the trade of Boston and New England.

THE PLAN B RUMSPUS

The rumspus that has been stirred up at city hall over the Plan B petition, seems to have been wholly unnecessary. It is rather surprising that Mayor Brown should have shown such opposition to having Plan B submitted to the people. It would have at least an equal chance with other candidates in seeking re-election under Plan B if it should be adopted. He has made a bitter fight and has, we presume, proved that there were false signatures attached to the petition. The charge is one that should be thoroughly investigated with a view to the conviction and punishment of those who secretly conspired to defeat the petition by forging the names of voters. Whoever has been guilty of this, should be punished to the full extent of the law. It is a well known fact that there has been a strong public sentiment in favor of Plan B, and that being the case, no harm can come of submitting it to the people. If it goes on the ballot, the electorate will decide as between Plan B and the present charter which is working satisfactorily if the elected officials would only respect its provisions.

TURKISH AUDACITY

The Turks have become very cocky during the last few weeks and have presumed even to threaten the allies if they do not get possession of Eastern Thrace before noon can be taken on their demands by the Mudania conference. It seems the Turks are inviting opposition and even war; but apparently they realize what a helpless plight the allies are in at the present time. Unfortunately they are encouraged in this bold attitude by their friendly relations with France, whose statesmen seem to be diametrically opposed to the policy of England in the Near East and in preference to the extent to which the Turks should be allowed to re-enter Europe. Fortunately, for the present at least, France has decided to act in concert with England in refusing the Turkish demand for immediate possession of Thrace. With eastern Thrace in their possession, they would be in a position to enter upon further conquests and possibly to attack Greece or some of the newly established states. Should they precipitate another war, they would doubtless be joined by Russian forces with the result that all of Europe might once more be embroiled in a destructive war.

The only hope that such a possibility can be averted lies in the fact that England may be able to induce France to refuse the Turkish demands. It appears that Bonar Law, the leader of the conservatives in England, has made the proposition that if France continues to side with the Turks against England, then the latter shall withdraw her armies of occupation from the Thine district. That would be embarrassing to France; but judging from recent statements from the French ministry, it would appear that France is not afraid of handling Germany even if she has to do it alone. When England urged a reduction in the amount of reparations to be collected from Germany, France demurred and said she would collect the full amount provided for in the treaty if she had to do it alone. Thus the situation is filled with possibilities of future trouble, which only tactful diplomacy, or perhaps outside interference, can avert.

THE ELECTION COMMISSION

The election commission, of which Hugh C. McOsker is chairman, has been removed three times by Mayor Brown and twice reinstated by the city council. The mayor has appointed a new commission to take its place so that there may be some question as to which is the legal board. When it comes to a conflict of this kind between the mayor and the council, the latter has the authority under the charter to overrule the mayor's decision as to appointments. It can remove any head of a department or any commission of his appointment as appears from Section 35, Part 2 of the city charter which says:

"The city council may by a two-thirds vote of all its members, but only after granting a public hearing, suspend or remove from office, without the consent of the mayor, each and every administrative head of a department, or any member or members of boards or commissions for such cause as the city council voting, by yeas and nays, may in its judgment deem sufficient."

BANK ROBBERIES INCREASE

At the national convention of the American Bankers' association, alarming reports were read covering the number of crimes listed during the past year, with bankers as the victims. The convention was told of 406 burglaries and attempted burglaries in 37 states, banking institutions being the chief sufferers. More than 140 bankers were robbed during the past twelve months by highwaymen and sneak thieves. The holdups were larger in number than the report of the previous year indicated.

In an effort to cover all cases of crime that has to do with banks and banking, the "A. B. A." committee in charge of bringing out the salient facts in cases of crime reported from the 37 states, has now decided to broaden its activities by investigating all hold-ups, burglaries or felonious crimes perpetrated, on an officer or employee of a bank outside of its premises while they are in discharge of banking business and where life is placed in jeopardy. This amends a rule heretofore restricting investigation of crimes committed upon the bank's premises.

Judging from the report of Probation Officer Cronin, it does not appear that there is any diminution in the number of arrests for drunkenness. That being so, one of two things is obvious. Either the people are drinking more and taking the risks of its ill effects, or else they are buying real whiskey, which is difficult to find, and paying extraordinary prices for the same.

If the officials who seize liquor in the enforcement of the prohibition law are free to use it for their own use, some of the dry wets will be looking for jobs as enforcement officials. It is but a short time since a jury empaneled on a liquor case drank all the evidence and allowed it was the genuine stuff.

Incidentally, the United States has twelve speedy, well-armed destroyers on the way to Turkish waters to see that American trade interests are not disturbed by the warring Turks and their allied minions, who appear for the moment to be resting upon their arms.

So far as appears, the election commission, headed by Chairman McOsker, acted in good faith and with perfect honesty in handling the Plan B petition, and if there existed a conspiracy to defeat the petition, the commission was not a party to it.

Although it is a little late in the season, the Mayflower appears to be popular still, especially upon the front pages.

Today's Word

Today's word is—salvage. It is pronounced—sal-vage, with accent on the first syllable. It means—to save, to recover, to rescue from destruction. It comes from the Latin—salvare, to save. It is used like this—"When a business house burns, the salvaged goods usually are sold at a fire sale."

Hydraulic Engineer

She was very curious about things. "They tell me your husband is a hydraulic engineer," she said to her best friend, "but I always understood he was something in the city. I didn't know he was a technical expert, or anything like that." "He is a hydraulic engineer," said her friend, "but it's wonderful. He just waters mining stock."

A Thought

Not in the west is there appearance of a child. Neither from dark shall they reveal he, far the firmament in spaces. I pondered her reason—fear for these fields them and hides and drowns them and discovers, turning them together, kindles their fear. She said, O Love, thy multitude of lovers. Souls that shall know thee and the saints that are.

Father and Son

A man known among his friends as "Little Fish"—owing to his lack of inches—has a son just returned from abroad, who happens to be unusually tall. The father has no good reasons for being proud of the son as the son has of being proud of his father, but in the last few days the father of the two has been a good deal of introducing of "the boy" to friends. At his club one evening the little man stood his son in front of an ancient and distinguished member, and, gazing upward, much as if he were admiring the tallest point of St. Paul's cathedral, remarked: "Allow me to introduce my son." "Ah," observed the distinguished member, "A block off the old chip, I perceive."

Hard Man to Follow

It was rather late for Jones to be getting home. Walking up the street from the station, he heard some one following him. He increased his speed and the steps quickened also. Jones felt he must not reveal his terror by looking back. He turned quickly down a side street. The footsteps followed. He dodged into an alley, but was still pursued. In desperation he jumped a wall, ran up a stone and into a churchyard where he crouched panting in the shadow of a tombstone. The man behind still followed. Quivering with fear, Jones awaited his pursuer. "What do you want?" he asked. "I say," exclaimed the stranger, mopping his brow, "do you always go home this way? I want to see Mr. Brown, and the man at the station told me to follow you, as you lived next door. Have we much more of this to go through before we get there?"

Because I Had a Friend

Life never would have been so rich, to me so well worth while, but for that cheering word you spoke. But for that cheery smile. The burden had so heavy grown, my heart was filled with care; I never would have reached the goal, had you, friend, not been there. Because, because I had a friend. One who was real and true; Because your friendship did not fail just when I needed it most; I had the strength to clamber on; I had the will to do; Because I knew I had a friend, I've had no cause to rue. Oh, there are records of the past that tell of trust and confidence; Of friendships that survived the test of doubt, disaster, time; But I know one that's up to date, that has not faded and is true. When a man defeated fought and won— Because he had a friend.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

Undoubtedly several large gatherings will be necessary at the Memorial Auditorium before all the details coincident with the operation of the huge plant get into proper working order. It is not to be wondered at that more or less confusion occurs when a crowd of 4000 is being handled. It is a crowd for Lowell and something the city has not been accustomed to. The Grand Concert Friday night brought several incidents to light that need corrective measures applied and without doubt the board of trustees will solve all such problems in due time. But, outside of the jurisdiction of the trustees, is one of the biggest problems in connection with the use of the building. It is the vehicular traffic problem, and it is so important that it will call for the closest cooperation between the trustees, the police and the management of the plant. Friday night there was such a jam of automobiles and street cars in East Merrimack street that traffic was at a standstill and it was all caused, or at least a great deal of it, by machines parked at the curb between the river bridge and Fayette street. If crowds are to be handled in any kind of proper fashion, the street must be strictly closed to all parking between these limits during the time of a concert of the magnitude of that of Friday evening. If there is any laxity, immediate confusion will result and accident confusion accidents are very probable.

Madame Galli-Curci's recent also showed the need of more ticket takers. The crowd at the main entrance was altogether too large and congested at times. There are five ticket offices, three for the front and two for the driveway entrance and there should have been five ticket takers Friday night instead of two. It is extremely uncomfortable for women, slightly clad, to remain in line for several minutes and there is always the possibility of a crowd being necessary number of ticket takers there should be little of an exacting nature. It is also of some importance that the crowd could be admitted to Trophy hall and tickets taken inside. There was some complaint about the temperature in the Auditorium Friday night and that was up to the custodian of the building. He showed the crowd the ventilation. The ventilating fans are not yet in perfect working order, but there are windows enough, if properly manipulated, to keep the atmosphere at an even and comfortable temperature.

Franklin, N. H., Boy Football Victim

FRANKLIN, N. H., Oct. 9.—The first fatality in the football season in this state occurred today in the death of Frank Mass, a member of the Franklin High school eleven. The boy sustained a fractured skull Saturday in a game with the junior team of St. Anselm's college.

Third Trial of Arthur C. Burch

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—Today's superior court calendar called for the third trial of Arthur C. Burch of Evanston, Ill., charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, a young Los Angeles broker, in Beverly Glen, a suburb, Aug. 5, 1921. It was expected, however, that the trial would be continued a week.

Desperate Fighting Near Vladivostok

VLADIVOSTOK, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—Desperate fighting between the "red" and "white" armies is in progress on the Spassk front. The battle is the severest recorded since the Japanese evacuation began. The soviet forces are reported rushing troops with airplanes and tanks toward Vladivostok. The defenders are offering furious opposition.

"Bill" Hart in Fight Against Death

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—Continued improvement in the condition of William S. (Bill) Hart, film star, who has been critically ill with typhoid fever and complications, was announced today. Hart's strong constitution and remarkable vitality, have played an important role in his fight against death, and unless new complications develop there is little further danger, Dr. Leon J. Roth, who is attending Hart, said.

Coke For Bostonians Arrives

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Two thousand tons of coke, which will be sold to Bostonians at cost, was under the hatches of a steamer at a navy pier today. The fuel, purchased in the Alabama fields, was the first shipment of the coke recently purchased by Mayor James M. Curley under a special appropriation of the city council. Unloading of the cargo was delayed until the receipt of word from Washington as to whether it might be stored in a navy yard pocket.

Two Killed in Political Battle in Havana

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 9.—Fighting which arose out of the heated political campaign being waged preliminary to coming partial elections resulted in the death of two persons and the wounding of eight others last night at Guanajay, near here. The contending factions were members of the liberal party and of a political organization known as "friends of the people."

Mrs. Mealey Held in $10,000

BROOKLINE, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Katharine Mealey, who shot her husband, Frank Mealey in their home last Saturday, pleaded not guilty in district court today, to a charge of assault with intent to kill. She was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing on Wednesday. Mealey's condition was reported as slightly improved today although still critical. The shooting followed a quarrel.

TO RESIST TURK REOCCUPATION

The recent reverses to the Greek army and to settle once for all the question of Turkish re-entry into Europe. The general evaded the questions regarding the strength of his available forces which reliable local estimates place at about 45,000 men. The troops are well fed, equipped and conditioned.

GREEKS PROTEST BRITISH ATTITUDE

ATHENS, Oct. 9.—The Greek members of the chamber of deputies for Thrace have sent a statement to the British press declaring that if the British people believe the re-entry of the Turks into Europe will assure peace, they are suffering from a lamentable illusion.

The Thracians predict that before many months the British and French mandates for Palestine, Mesopotamia and Syria will be challenged, the Egyptian question reopened and the Gallipoli campaign relived. They declare that, in avoiding armed conflict today the British are merely postponing the inevitable, and that in the near future they will have to fight under infinitely worse conditions than at present.

If, nevertheless, Greece is to be stripped of her new territories, says the statement, she ought to be spared the crushing blow of being swamped with 1,300,000 refugees. The signatories demand that allied troops remain permanently in Thrace to save the non-Turkish population from massacre or deportation.

REVOLUTION TOO LATE TO SAVE THRACE

ATHENS, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—Attempts by reactionaries to make capital out of the loss of Thrace will be met, if necessary, by force, it is declared by Colonel Gonatas, who is still the military dictator of the new Greek government.

Col. Gonatas announced before the meeting of the Commercial Association of Athens that the army was ready to take severe measures to protect the national safety and assure permanency to the objects of the revolution.

"The revolution was achieved peacefully," he said, "but the army is ready to take grave decisions against those who seek to exploit the loss of Thrace by discrediting the revolution, which came too late to save Thrace."

"But if the revolution came early enough to prevent a greater disaster, the pretensions of the enemy will not be limited by the line of the Maritza river." (The Maritza river marks the western boundary of that portion of Thrace which the allies have agreed to return to the Turks.)

SHEEHAN BROKE LEG IN CONCORD GAME

"Pete" Sheehan, left half back on the Lowell high school football team, sustained a broken leg in Saturday's game with Concord, N. H., high which will keep him out of the lineup for the remainder of the season. Sheehan, who had been playing a spectacular game all afternoon, tackled a Concord back and in the rush, his leg was broken. The leg was placed beneath the weight of half a dozen players, breaking the leg just below the thigh. He was rushed to Margary's pharmacy, where an X-ray revealed the injured member. It is thought by physicians that the lucky half back will be compelled to remain in the hospital for at least three weeks.

Lowell high lost the game 27 to 0, but this fact was offset by the still more serious loss of Sheehan, whose services to the team are indispensable. He was the mainstay of the squad, the man around whom Coach "Limmy" Linton had built the majority of his plays, and his absence from the lineup places the local team at a serious disadvantage. Coach Linton and several of the players visited Sheehan at the Concord hospital yesterday and reported that he was resting comfortably.

AVOCATIONS

There's a true romantic glamor to the wielding of a hammer,
And the song the saw is singing makes glad music on the air,
There's a simple sort of pleasure when you scheme and plan and measure
For the making of a table or the shaping of a chair;
Though you're awkward and ungainly and your blunders stand out plainly,
Though the job is bungled badly when your laboring is done,
Though your friends may jeer and kid it, none the less you're proud
You did it.

As a carpenter you're awful—but you've had a lot of fun!

Then your labors grow more thrilling as you find you're getting skillful
That you do not pound your fingers as you often used to do,
When you know, beyond denying, that the task which you are trying
May at least resemble something when your tinkering is through
Oh, you feel exceeding clever when the fruit of your endeavor
Is a box or chair or table or a sofa or a shelf

Which is near what you intended; and you whisper "Ain't it splendid?"
As you stand around admiring what you fashioned by yourself!

Life can never be a glam thing for the man who's building something (When it isn't really labor but another form of play.)
Give him rules and chalk and pencils, give him tools and such utensils,
And he'll have the sort of hobby which will drive his cares away.
He will paint and he will plaster, he will do his best to muster
Every craft he ever heard of, with no thought of filthy pelf,
Every tinker's job will lure him and there's nothing that will cure him
Of the feverish endeavor to be making things himself!

"JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES"

After licking Stony, Jack turned his attention to Bill. "Come on, Bill," said he, "you're next." But Bill had started away. He didn't care to mix fists with a boy who could lick Stony.

Then Jack helped Stony up off the ground. "This ought to teach you a good lesson," said Jack. "Don't try to bully everyone you meet." Then he bid Stony a cheery goodbye.

Jack looked around for his horse and found he had wandered into a farm yard. He went right in after him and found Flip, his faithful dog, also. The three started away again.

Jack was feeling fine after his fight and he let his horse gallop. Suddenly lightning shied at a huge sign. Jack hopped down and read it. His way was blocked. Continued.

DISCHARGED ENGINEER PUT BACK ON LEDGE

Michael J. Ready, discharged from his position at the city ledge early this summer, was reinstated to his job by the board of public service at a meeting held late Saturday afternoon. Mr. Ready was fired by Supt. Doherty for alleged insubordination. The superintendent's action was upheld by the board, but Mr. Ready, through his attorney, Thomas L. Reynolds, brought civil action. Judge Pickman heard the case in district court and ordered reinstatement.

Two weeks ago the matter was referred to the city collector and at Saturday's meeting he agreed to whatever disposition Chairman Dennis J. Murphy and the other board members cared to make of it. Mr. Ready will assume his former work at wages being paid at the time of discharge.

Chairman Murphy made it clear that in all probability the ledge will not be worked next year, because it has been shown that the city can buy crushed stone cheaper than it can be turned out at home.

Street department bills were approved, except one of $1650 from L. P. Palmer for edge and circle stones.

MASSACHUSETTS MILL CLUB OUTING

An outing under the auspices of the Massachusetts mill Social and Educational club was held Saturday at the company's clubhouse at Almont. Automobile trucks conveyed the excursionists to the grounds, the party leaving the mill at 12.30 o'clock, headed by the club's brass band. Trap shooting and target practice as well as varied sports were carried out during the afternoon and later a clam-bake was served. The officers of the club, who were responsible for the success of the event are as follows: George Stewart, president; Frederick Whitler, vice president; Everett Colburn, treasurer; Orrin Webster, secretary; Ora W. Hardy, Fred Balcorn, George Slipp, Henry Rogers and William Barnes, directors.

Boomers for Big Hotel

found today. This is not the first time that an attempt has been made to ascertain the private views of the mercantile leaders of Lowell, as well as opinions on our hotel accommodation system from citizens who have the best interests of the Spruill City always at heart.

It can be said without fear of contradiction and just as emphatically as words will allow, that Lowell business men, great and small, from mill magnate and department store heads down to the vendors of small wares of every sort, believe that the time is now ripe for a get-together campaign to dispose of the problem that has for so many years reacted against the activities, wealth and progress of the city as a whole—the lack of decent hotel accommodations for Lowell citizens and Lowell visitors.

Here are the views of leading merchants of Lowell who represent the rank and file of "the business interests" closely allied with the prosperity of the city and its inhabitants every day in the year, and who conduct business maris that may be said to be the very life of the community from a commercial standpoint.

"We believe Lowell should wait no longer in solving the hotel problem," said a Merrimack street merchant today.

"Lowell has something to learn from Worcester, Springfield and other cities—even from smaller ones than those. No city can afford to allow itself high-grade mark of excellence and prosperity without adequate and reliable hotel accommodations at all times. An up-to-date, comfortable hotel serving top-notch foods and providing inviting accommodations in apartments that attract and delight and make the visitors stay memorable, is what Lowell needs at the present time and what we believe we must have, if we are to keep up with the progressive cities of New England that are stepping along so swiftly and smoothly with excellent hotel accommodations that not only draw the age back again, but bring prosperity in the shape of distributed wealth every day in the year."

Real Estate Men Booners

A tour through the real estate offices brought similar statements. The land values of central Lowell would promptly increase, it is predicted, with the erection of a modern hotel in a convenient location comfortably close to the mercantile pulse of the municipality.

"Did you know that the values of real estate since the erection of three modern hotels in the city of Worcester within the past few years, have increased in many parts of 'the heart of the Commonwealth' wonderfully?"

"The same thing would happen here in Lowell," said a real estate operator whose business is devoted almost exclusively to handling mercantile properties in central sections of the city.

"Furthermore, with the advent of increased hotel patronage, through the bringing of conventions to Lowell, and of course our new Memorial Auditorium is going to be a wonderful aid to attract new comers to the city, too—there will come increased trading in all our busy lines of trade throughout the city. People who come here for convention purposes, or travel to Lowell on their way to the north or south and remain over night, if we have good hotel accommodations, spend money while they are here. This means something. There is no limit to the real profit a city secures from increased number of visitors from the flow of money that could be made of course from the pockets of those who come to the town for recreation or business."

Builders interviewed, agreed that the new Auditorium was one of the most important aids to the new hotel proposition that has yet been brought to Lowell and that it would be a public help to "let things go as they are."

Many citizens feel that with the coming of notable operatic stars and distinguished men and women guests in many other walks of life to Lowell for Auditorium gatherings where the people not only enjoy the entertainment but are more acutely aware of modern and commodious hotel accommodations than ever before.

The dry goods men naturally look to the larger hotel proposition as something that will mightily strengthen local trading conditions, and they are not long in pointing out the low traveling men rarely remain over night in Lowell, as conditions now exist, preferring to journey either to Worcester or some other city providing good hotel accommodations. Said a retail dry goods merchant today:

"A large hotel with six-story building with 100 good rooms or more, centrally located, not too far away from the main business areas, would pay from the start, in my frank opinion. There is no doubt about it."

"Scores of drummers come to Lowell every week, loaded down with sample cases. They never stay here over night—at least, very few of them do to my knowledge. Most of them hurry away at nightfall to Boston."

Other merchants spoke along this same line. Several said that good, well-lighted sample display rooms were needed by many visiting traveling men for the display of their wares.

Another dealer said if the salesman had quarters provided for them in a larger hotel, where samples could be displayed regularly, more goods would be disposed of by the distribution of additional varieties of salable articles that could not be purchased through the meagre facilities now afforded for this important branch of modern business.

Hotel Site Vital Problem

The site for a new hotel is a vital problem, of course. Lowell merchants interviewed today declared they considered the territory in the John street section about as ideal as any for a new, roomy structure that would be handy to all patrons, whether passing guests, "regulars," traveling salesmen, women guests or convention delegates and "incidental."

One or two business men believed that the hotel desired would "look better" if it could be built in some section of City Hall square, a modern hostelry there with a good-looking frontage adding to the general appearance of the area and being at the same time "in the heart" of the city proper.

Few business men would place the hotel near the railroad territory, although it is known that properties could easily be purchased now down along the rail lines on numerous streets running to the east and west and south.

Each Lowell man interested in securing better hotel accommodations for local inhabitants and visitors, believes in centrally locating the hotel of the future.

The splendid part of the city now so greatly beautified by the erection of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium is also highly endorsed.

Almost anywhere along East Merrimack street can be found suitable locations for a hotel structure such as is desired by leading citizens today. While land values have increased some since the building of the Auditorium, it is said most emphatically that none of the properties that could be purchased are being held for anything more than they are really worth.

Many other business men outside the popular places of trading, agreed with their brethren in the city's commercial activities that a larger hotel, and a good one from top to bottom, with plenty of room to start with, is the very first thing that Lowell needs to boost business along into its proper stride locally from now on.

Manchester, N. H., is building one of the finest hotel structures in New England right now. Portland is coming along with another one in the spring. Hartford and New Haven have three and four hosteries, not prospects, but realities within the past two years.

Theatrical Manager Talks

"Lowell will never be the city it ought to be and could be until it has a place where theatres may be held in a simple and fashionable manner, the rule in other leading cities of the eastern section of the country," said a Lowell manager today.

"I can safely say, too—and I want to make this very emphatic—that if Lowell could provide better, more convenient and more comfortable accommodations for members of traveling theatrical companies, we would be able to secure better attractions than has sometimes been the case in the past. The theatrical profession has kept Lowell 'off the map' theatrically speaking, for a good many years. You know all about it—I am not telling you anything new."

"But if we had better hotel accommodations, some assurance that traveling thespians, who always like the best there is and always get it if it can be found, could be welcomed and harbored over night here without discomfort and longings for things that are necessary for the comfort of these people who amuse us and rub the ridges from our little melancholy moments, we would have better dramatic, comedy and operatic attractions right along; we would be spending more money in Lowell and would be as prosperous as some other cities I could mention on the New England circuits today."

Scores of conventions of labor unions, civic bodies, fraternal associations and benefit organizations galore, have been invited to Lowell, time without end, only to be obliged to decline the hearty welcomes because no hotel room could be found for delegates and guests, to say nothing of accommodations for invited speakers and entertainment talent sometimes accompanying large convention bodies.

With a modern hotel, Lowell could entertain thousands of motor tourists all seasons of the year. Hundreds of motorists pass through Lowell daily on their way north, south, east and west. Few tourists stop in this city over night, finding no hotel accommodations suitable for their needs.

Business men told a Star reporter today of numberless incidents where traveling motorists stopped in Lowell simply to inquire the way to Boston hotel accommodations could be found. Lowell has been and should be—but is not at the present time—a "half-way" stop for through passengers trav-

Spoonful for a Penny Brings Quick Relief

Prove splendid laxative properties of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by test

SCIENTIFIC test has now proven what Dr. Caldwell of Monticello asserted many years ago, that constipation will slow you up fully 25 per cent. The test was made by Dr. Donaldson of Loma Linda on four men in the prime of life who deliberately went without a bowel movement for four days. Within 48 hours the men had coated tongue and foul breath, cankers in the mouth, no appetite, restless sleep, indigestion, headache, depression, nervousness, cramps. The blood pressure was up 25 per cent. It is just this that Dr. Caldwell has preached to his patients in private and to the public through the printed word ever since he began the practice of his specialty, diseases of the stomach and bowels, back in 1875.

After observing for years the satisfactory effect of his prescription for constipation, he placed it in drug stores in 1892, a simple vegetable compound of Pepsin, sugar and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. That was 30 years ago, and today over 10 million bottles are bought annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world. You will find it in any drug store you enter, a generous size bottle costing you less than a cent a dose.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "What can I find a truly worthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. H. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

TAKE DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN The family laxative

elling by rail from New York city to the Canadian points, and vice versa, railroad officials say. Today passengers rarely alight from through trains here except to purchase newspapers or tidbits from the station newsstand. Lowell business men say if a suitable hotel could be erected in the heart of the city, with accommodations enough for all desiring to partake of Lowell hospitality 365 days in the year, that a good many people traveling through Lowell either by train or auto would frequently stop here for rest and recreation over night, and sometimes several days at a time, depending upon the reception the visitors received and the way they were treated in the taverns where transients, rich and poor, are cared for if they are respectable and have money enough to spend for desired hospitality.

The lack of hotel accommodations is never criticised quite so strenuously, probably, as during "Auto Show Week" in Lowell. That week certain tests the callipers of the automobile rank and file. Not an extra room can be hired in any local hostelry during that annual exhibition. Boston visitors and automobile men have been in the habit of coming to Lowell by train or automobile, and hurrying right home again "after the show." Very few men engaged in the industry have a chance to remain more than 24 hours in the city, and then only as guests of Lowell business men engaged in the auto sales industry. It is difficult each year to find "room enough" to entertain the visiting automobile experts and negotiators, much as Lowell automobile salesmen would like to do so, and this is not discounting one of the splendid services always extended to the visiting gentlemen of the "big wheel circuit."

There is today a real revival of the "new hotel" proposition in Lowell. You can feel it all through the busy new districts of the city, hear the merchants and other interested citizens talking about it daily almost as much as they do about the weather or the baseball scores.

And this revival is likely to bring results before long, for no one with the best interests of the city at heart can deny that Lowell needs a vigorous dose of business revival medicine in the shape of a modern, commodious hotel building that would prove not only a genuine boon to Lowell as an up-to-date municipality, but a splendid aid to the future life and healthy activities, social and commercial, of the city as a whole.

Show Them What this new way does

No mother wants children to suffer what she may have suffered from her teeth.

Then teach them the new way of teeth cleaning. Show the prettier teeth it brings, the whiter, safer teeth. Or let them make this test, and see and feel the benefits themselves.

Must fight film

Dingy teeth and most tooth troubles are now traced to film. One must fight to avoid them.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Stains discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, very few escaped tooth troubles. Beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Two ways found

Then dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle it, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists the world over began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. Those two great film combatants are embodied in it for daily application.

Its new effects

Pepsodent brings other effects which research proved essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Each use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

For dainty people

Pepsodent is now used by millions the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations have adopted it, largely by dental advice. Dainty people—those who care for whiter, cleaner teeth—will never go without it.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

McGRAW PILOTS HIS TEAM TO THIRD WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

Kelley's Single, Driving in Two Runs in Eighth, Overcomes Yankees' Lead and Giants Win Final Game by Score of 5 to 3—Huggins Ordered Bush to Pass Young to Get Kelly—Yanks Outgained and Outplayed and Failed to Win a Game in Big Classic

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press) Just before the opening of the world series last Wednesday, John Joseph McGraw, sometimes called "Little Napoleon," said:

"The club with the most consistent fighters wins the most ball games."

His statement has been vindicated, confirmed and sealed. His Giants, rated early by the most conservative of experts, to have nothing more than a fighting chance of winning one game, battled through the finished "paper-play" of the Yankees, won four games, led one, lost none, and are still world champions.

Fighting Ability Won

Nehf and home on Scott's sacrifice fly to Cunningham.

Frisch Star of Series

Frank Frisch proved to be the greatest player in the series, although Groh and Bancroft also did exceptionally good work. Groh's hitting was the best done by any one on either club and he certainly justified McGraw's persistency until he landed him with the Giants.

Frisch is a youngster who was playing football and basketball at Fordham college three years ago. While he was followed it up with five more, when play came to a standstill at the 32-yard line. On third down, Kemptz, who was tackled on the 15-yard line by Barrett, Condon was injected into the game as a "hot" back and ran 20 yards to the right of the line. Brickley, brother to the famous "Charlie" of Harvard fame, took Kemptz's place and ran 16 yards to recover the punt by Parley. Teleguon, on a fake kick formation, gained five yards for the third down and Parley punted to the 37-yard line. On fourth down, Smith carried the ball and made six yards to carry the ball and he made 6 yards around right end. A neat lateral pass from Brigham to K. Smith to Lombard placed the ball on the 48-yard line. Lombard again placed the ball on the 23-yard line, and on first down, Kemptz announced the end of the first half, however, and Textile's best chance faded.

Third Period

After a 10-minute intermission, play was resumed with Triggs punting to Olson, who ran it back to the 32-yard line where being hit by Barrett, he tried to log on through center. K. Smith ripped off five yards through right tackle and an intercepted forward pass sent him to the 19-yard line. On second down, Tarry on the 15-yard line, followed by a five-yard punishment for an off-side offence. Suttelle went in for a red zone kick which failed to boot. Smith made a neat yard run on a bad pass, Suttelle fumbled and McGee recovered for Providence, running 10 yards to the 23-yard line. The field for a touchdown, but the play was ruled out owing to the fact that the Providence right tackle was reported

From every approach that could be made on paper, before the first game was played, the Giants were considered a badly beaten club. The figures said the Giants had but one reliable pitcher and that the Yanks had nothing else but outstanding pitchers and that pitching had on every world record book.

But the record books were misleading. The index didn't even carry the caption: "Fighting ability." Few men in baseball besides "Little Napoleon" Evers had it doped. But he had found that he had the ball, he had it and he staked his pride that he could recognize it when he saw it.

The score of yesterday's game, that decided the series for the national was 5 to 3, but that's only an incident. The score was not the main thing. It was the fight. The Giants won that game and all the others they captured because they were the "most consistent."

Of course the Ginnis have ability. Catchers can't sit in the last five days at the Polo Grounds. Would have been as useful as an unarmed dough boys' column marching against a battery of big Berthas. No mean feat were the Yankees.

Kelly There In Pinch

It was courage and skill that enabled Long George Kelly to straighten out a Joe Bush fork ball in the eighth inning of the game yesterday when the Yankees came back and the bases were full with two out. He had just been belittled by Miller Huggins.

As a star at football, he was not regarded as being exceptionally good as a baseball player. Because of what he has shown since joining the Giants he must hereafter be regarded as one of the great players in the game. His all-around work was probably the most important to be seen in a world's series.

Wallie Pipp, who was the first-round work for the Yankees, and the well-known Scott and Dugan, in the field, was very fine. Dugan, however, did not come up to expectations in his stickwork.

John McGraw, who was the veteran Braves, and later cast-off by Cincinnati, was the only pitcher on either side who was not scored on, and so he looks like he did the best pitching.

Dabbs, who was the second rounder in a battered, flayed utility position, was expected to fail and could not be realized. The Giant pitchers seemed to realize this and did not even pay him the compliment of passing him particularly because they were so generous. He made only two hits in sixes up in the series, a single in the first game and a double in the second.

His only bases on balls, made on sacrifice, was on a double play pitcher ball and struck out three times.

CADETS BEAT INDIANS

Belvidere Eleven Plays
Whirlwind Game and Wins
Out by Score of 14 to 6

The youthful O.M.I. Cadet football team won out over the veteran Indian

The game opened with the Indians receiving the kick-off. McIntyre took the ball and ran it back twenty yards, after three unsuccessful attempts, to penetrate the Cadet line. He then passed to the forward line, where the Indians took the ball on downs. After the first play, McIntyre fumbled. Curran recovering for the Cadets. With the ball in their possession, the Indians were unable to

The second period opened with the Indians on offense. D. O'Connor received the ball on his three-yard line and with the most sensational run of the game carried the plegkin to the 40-yard line. The Indians thought the entire Indian team with the exception of one man, Gleason, who was the only one to tackle O'Connor. The Cadets were held for two downs here but on the third play, a forward pass, D. O'Connor to Curran, carried the ball through the Indian backfield for a touchdown. D. O'Connor kicked the goal after (continued on page 2)

ABBOT WORSTED TEAM DEFEATS SHAWSHEENS

On a slippery field the Abbot Worsted team defeated Shawshien Village Saturday afternoon, 15-0. The Abbot team was coached by Ed. Shusen, by a score of 3 to 1. The ball was hard to control but the Abbot players did not let the opposition get a chance to get the ball. The Abbot team managed to put the leather on the net on three occasions. Lineup:

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Butler A. A. football team defeated the Wildcats of Billerica in a hard-fought battle witnessed by a goodly crowd of spectators on the Fair grounds yesterday afternoon. The fast open work of the Butlers had the visitors huddled and they pilled up 23 points in the first half. The Wildcats were prevented from making any comeback by the play of the winners was a treat to look on, and every play was run off like clockwork.

TO ROOT FOR DOWNES

Big Delegation Coming From Boston—Boyle in Fine
Fettle—Boxing Notes

At least two hundred South Boston fans will come to Lowell on Columbus day to root for Johnny Downes in his bout with Phineas Doyle. Already the Boston contingent has made an application for reservations and they are planning auto parties for the holiday trip.

Doyle has been training diligently ever since the last meeting which resulted in the Lowell boy being awarded the bout, when Downes refused to fight. Downes' manager, Ed Sullivan, has been on the road about every day, and he also put in much work in the gymnasium.

Downes, according to word from Boston, has trained more carefully for the coming bout than any other, with the possible exception of his bout with Johnny Sullivan. Downes has been in Boston several months ago. He has worked out every day for the past month with Ed Sullivan. Now that Sullivan has finished up his work, Downes has begun to work out with young Tauney, Tommy Leahy and Willie.

Champion Jack of Lawrence and Whitley Walsh of Boston are all set for their semi-final number. Ray Russell, Ed Shevline and Eddie Purcell of Lowell will also be in the final round, and Tommy Moran and Frankie Hebert are to meet in the other six rounds.

With a chance to meet Jack Britton, world welterweight champion as a contender, Eddie Shelvin and Dave Shadoff will be in the spotlight. One of the most important battles between welterweights of the season and indications point to a record turn-out.

Billy Murphy of the Acre is in fine condition for his Boston debut, which will come on Friday night. Originally it was planned to run the boats to-morrow night, but a postponement has been made. Murphy is to meet Johnny Lucare in an eight round bout pitting the Jack Malone-Johnny Karmal main event.

Sporting Editor: I have matched Joe Curry of New Haven to meet Willie Corbett of Cambridge at Salem Oct. 18, and Mickey Travers to meet Al Shubert at New Bedford on Monday Oct. 18. Will let Joe Curry box Johnny Freely at any weight, at any terms or winner take all.

Thanking you in advance for any sport you may give the above, I remain your in sport

MEETING OF POLO LEAGUE IN BOSTON

Six cities were represented at an enthusiastic meeting of the National Roller Polo league, held at the Copley square hotel, Boston, yesterday afternoon. William P. Cronin, of Providence, president of the league, presided. William D. Perrin, of Providence, read a report of the last meeting and also submitted a list showing that about 75 per cent. of the applications from six cities were accepted on the league's staff of referees were received. They were as follows: James J. Sullivan, of Boston; by knowledge of Salem; Percy Gratton of Portland, Me., and a trio from Providence—William H. Kilgarr, Bill Deveron and Jack Finnell.

The meeting voted to adopt the Victor ball for use in all games during the season, and to agree to make up the schedule of games was named as follows: William D. Perrin of the Copley hotel; William H. Sullivan of the Lyndhurst; and Frank De Rice of Portland.

Adjournment was taken to next Tuesday afternoon at 10 o'clock in the Copley Square hotel.

SHUPTING GEARS DONE POORLY
The average motorist does not know

This is the conclusion reached after a series of tests recently conducted by the Iowa State college in co-operation with the National Research Council. Especially when he takes a hill, the average motorist shifts his gears improperly, find these experts.

The motorist waits too long to shift from high to second on a hill, says the research. Thus they lose speed, overtax the engine and consume more gasoline. The general rule, they note, is to slow down to less than 8.5 m.p.h. before they found, is rarely followed.

The tests also showed that, in descending a hill, it is cheaper to retard the speed with the brake than by shifting to a lower gear.

WORK RUSHED ON 35,000 TON ICE PLANT

The echoes of busy workmen's voices and the sounds of hammers, saws and machinery fill the air these days in "the village in the woods." As the cozy little summer colony in the forest about the shores of historic Flat's pond—sometimes called Baptist pond—is known to residents of that neighborhood just outside the village of South Chelmsford.

Beginning today, "full speed ahead" was the order that went out to about 25 workmen, including a quartet of expert building carpenters, who are putting in the foundation for a brand new 35,000-ton-capacity ice house close to the shores of the well known body of water that already provides each year thousands of tons of ice for the people of Lowell and nearby towns.

The big Daniel Gage ice houses are just across the water from the new plant now going up, but Baptist pond is no tiny sheet of water and, in the words of a Gage foreman, "there is room for all."

The new 35,000-ton ice storage, to be erected and made ready for filling on or about Nov. 1, is nearly a "new plant" now, but soon the builders will finish that foundation, the big beams will be placed in position and the timbers will go up for the sheath.

ing, claspboards, roof and covering materials.

Just now the work consists of preparing the immense area—smoothing, grading and staking out the building site.

A great deal of work has been done during the past week with a small force of men. Today the work was renewed with additional workmen, and the building campaign will be carried on, rain or shine, without a let-up.

Already some of the huge quantities of machinery for the bringing of ice blocks from the pond has arrived on the long, new railroad siding. Immense shipments of lumber of all kinds are piled up in the woodlands close to the new storage foundations, ready for the carpenters.

One car just arrived contains the new hoisting gallery—the big chain with the latest modern attachments that are to be used to carry the ice cakes up long runways and away into the new seven-compartment ice house next winter. This "big chain" is 300 feet long, of extra size for this new plant. It is wonderful in makeup, but works smoothly with a simple lever that a child could operate.

The woodland all about the new ice plant has just been cleared by wood-choppers, "stumpers" and workmen familiar with the method of clearing away lumber acreages and leveling ground. Hundreds of cords of wood had to be cut and carted away to provide room for the ice house builders. Numerous roads have been built and are being built from the Chelmsford Carline highway, to give free access to the grounds where the construction gangs are working. Several new buildings for storing equipment have just been finished. There is a new barn for the stabling of horses, tools and other necessary equipment.

Just across the way a "big hole" has been "notched" out of a section of scrub oak, pine and other woods for the building of a two and one-half story home for the superintendent of this future ice plant, Walter J. Bachelder. And the "super" has his hands full overseeing the construction work on the new home he and his family are to occupy in the days to come, and also supervising just across the country woodland road the ice house construction.

This "house in the woods," for that describes it accurately, is to be entirely modern in every way. It has a 22 by 20 foundation plan, and will contain seven rooms, a bath room, commodious cellar area and the usual conveniences that go with modern home construction.

The smaller ice plant, nearly located on a section of the land now controlled by the Metropolitan people of Boston, was erected a year ago by the New Bedford ice company, which sold out not long ago to the Boston concern after a hard-luck experience at ice-harvesting. The 5000-ton storage building collapsed when only partly filled during the big ice storm last winter. This required another heavy outlay of money, and the Burns River ice company, controlling the New Bedford project, finally gave up the job as an investment that could not be completed with resources at hand. Then came the sale to the

PAINS IN 'BACK?

Listen to What Mr. McCay Says About It.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"For several years I had been subject to severe pains in my back, which often became so intense that I was compelled to cease work for days at a time. I could hardly walk. I feared I was about to lose my health or experience a general breakdown. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets on Saturday night and in less than twenty-four hours all trace of pain had completely gone, and although ten weeks have now elapsed I have never felt the slightest return of the pain. I will be pleased to recommend Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets to any one whose condition may be similar."—Henry McCay, 100 Milton St., (Greenpoint). Write to Dr. Pierce, President Invalidee Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free confidential medical advice.—Adv.

In full understanding of Mr. Albee and his large ideals, there rallied the foremost artists, writers and managers of England, France, Italy, and America.

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can dye or tint faded, shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, hangings, draperies, everything like new. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed, even if you have never dyed before. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.—Adv.

Metropolitan people and the beginning of this new building project, which is to help supply metropolitan Boston with ice from Baptist pond beginning next winter.

The Metropolitan people are wholesalers only, handling great quantities of ice each year, with supplies coming from many New England territories. The company has many large ice contracts, supplying, for instance, beer merchants, refrigerating cars and retail ice merchants. The headquarters are located at No. 15 Commercial wharf, Boston.

The new ice house to be erected on the shores of Baptist pond in South Chelmsford is to be 200 by 32 feet in size, and will contain seven "troops" for storages. Later on it is the Metropolitan's plan to enlarge this storage equipment here to 50,000 tons capacity. A new spur track is already in, and there is a possibility of another one coming along in the near future.

The new ice plant is to give employment to Chelmsford residents in the year around, Supl. Bachelder said today. Preference, of course, will be given to citizens of the town, as Mr. Bachelder intends to make the town his home in the future and he prefers "home talent" when he supervises jobs of this kind.

E. F. ALBEE HONORED ON 65TH BIRTHDAY

Yesterday marked the sixty-fifth birthday anniversary of Mr. E. F. Albee, president and head of the vast B. F. Keith vaudeville organization. All over the country his friends, associates, followers and admirers have been planning a special observance of his birthday. To all of these friendly suggestions he has said: "No." In spite of that, however, the managers of his numerous theatres have, with their felicitations, Manager Pickett of the local theatre regards Mr. Albee as a worthy successor to B. F. Keith, the founder of the vaudeville circuit. Just at present Mr. Albee is busily engaged with the details of opening three splendid new theatres—the most palatial yet constructed—one in Cleveland and the others in Dayton and Brooklyn.

Mr. Albee recently won many encomiums through the presentation of a noble portrait of Edwin Booth through the International Rotarians to the Shakespeare memorial gallery at Stratford-on-Avon. To this event and

Revolutionary Greek Army at Adrianople Declares it Will Not Retire

Paris Expects Mudania Conference to Reach Complete Agreement Today

Report Turkish Nationalists Have Resumed Advance in Dardanelles Area

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press) The Near East situation continued to present disturbing potentialities today, with the revolutionary Greek army at Adrianople declaring it would not retire, and with the victorious Turkish army concentrating at Asiad and preparing to reach Constantinople and protect the Turks in Thrace. The uneasiness was added to by the report that the allies are not generally considered to have sufficient armed forces to control either the Turks or the Greeks.

The British cabinet met this afternoon to watch the proceedings at Mudania, where the armistice conference is being held.

DECREASE IN NATION'S CORN CROP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The nation's corn crop decreased by 25,000,000 bushels during September, presumably due to drought which prevailed in many of the corn growing states, according to the department of agriculture's forecast of production based on conditions at the end of the month. The department forecast a crop of 2,833,333,000 bushels in comparison with the total of 2,858,333,000 bushels forecast at the end of August.

CLIFFORD HAYES ACCUSED OF KILLING REV. DR. HALL AND MRS. MILLS

19-Year-Old Admirer of Pearl Bahmer, Who Found Bodies, Arrested and Formally Charged With First Degree Murder—Chum Declares Slaying Result of Mistaken Identity

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 9.—Clifford Hayes, 19 years old, admirer of Pearl Bahmer, who found the bodies of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, choir singer, was arrested today and formally charged with first degree murder.

Raymond Schneider, who was with the Bahmer girl when the bodies were found, was held as a material witness. Prosecutors Beckman and Stricker of Middlesex and Somerset counties say Schneider signed a 300-word statement accusing Hayes of the crime.

According to Schneider's statement, the double slaying was the result of mistaken identity. He had gone out with Hayes on the night of the murders, he said, trailing a man who accompanied the Bahmer girl. Seeing a couple beneath a crabapple tree, he said, Hayes opened fire. Announcement of the arrests was made at 11:45 by Prosecutor Stricker.

KILLS THREE AND THEN ENDS LIFE

Rochester, N. Y., Woman Finds Her Three Children and Husband Dead

Little Ones Drowned in Bathtub by Father Who Then Shot Himself

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 9.—The bodies of a father and his three children today are lying side by side in an undertaking establishment here, victims of a quadruple tragedy in this city late last night. The children, Ethelyn 5, Grace 2, and Russell Wheeler, six months, were drowned in a bathtub at their home by the father, William E. Wheeler, who after witnessing life pass from the little ones, fired a bullet into his brain. Despondency because of inability to obtain employment, was responsible for the crime, police said. Wheeler's wife found the bodies after her return home from church.

Mrs. Wheeler, who swooned after the bathroom door was broken down by a boarder, told police when she left the home her husband appeared to be in excellent spirits. The children at that time were in bed. When she failed to find them in their respective beds, she began a search which revealed the tragedy.

REHEARINGS DENIED BY U. S. SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The supreme court today denied a rehearing of the case brought by the United States in which it directed the Southern Pacific Co. to divorce itself of ownership and control over the Central Pacific railroad.

A rehearing of the Coronado Coal case was also denied. The Coronado Coal Co. asked to have reviewed that part of the decision which held that the United Mine Workers union and certain individuals had not been guilty of restraint of interstate commerce.

N. Y. EDITOR KILLS BARTENDER

Harry Sutphen Held at Jamaica for Murder of William Biermann

Shooting Followed Quarrel as Pair Were Riding Home in Taxicab

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Harry Sutphen, owner and editor of the Queensboro Bulletin, of Jamaica, who shot and killed William Biermann, a bartender, early today in front of Sutphen's apartment house in Jamaica, the police announced.

According to the police, Sutphen and Biermann, after spending most of the night at a hotel in Jamaica, were driving toward Sutphen's home in a taxicab, and the shooting followed a quarrel. The driver of the taxicab, Martin Siebert, Jr., told the police that both men had been drinking and that Sutphen had accused Biermann of abusing him.

Sutphen suddenly drew a pistol, Siebert said, and fired one shot. He then commanded Siebert to take him to a hospital. Siebert informed a policeman and Sutphen was taken into custody.

MRS. BRADY IN COURT

Pleads Not Guilty to Indictment Charging Murder in First Degree

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Mary G. Brady, held for the killing of her husband, Fred W. Brady, at the Lowell city hall, last week, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging murder in the first degree today. Her arraignment was before Judge Hammond in the superior court.

MRS. PHILLIPS DENIES MURDER CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Clara Phillips awaiting trial Oct. 20, charged with the slaying of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, who was beaten to death with a hammer, July 12, has made to newspapermen her first point blank denial except when she pleaded in court that she was guilty of the crime.

"I never struck the blow that killed Alberta Meadows," Mrs. Phillips was quoted as saying. "Neither did I strike the first blow. It was."

At that point she checked herself and refused to finish the sentence.

It is reported that it is Mrs. Phillips' determination not to plead insanity which was once announced as her defense.

Two Boards of Election Commissioners Are On Duty at City Hall

The Old Board and the New Are Both on Hand to Conduct Registration for State Election—Each Board Claims Right to Occupancy—Old Board Probably Will Ask for Another Hearing Tonight—If Mayor Again Removes, Mandamus Action Will Follow

Should the city council tonight receive a request from Attorney Al. McOsker, Al. McOsker, counsel for the original board of election commissioners, Messrs. Hugh C. McOsker, J. Omer Allard, Joseph H. Maguire and Thomas H. Braden, for another public hearing and constitute the board for the third time, and should this action be followed by a fourth removal on the part of the mayor, Mr. Howard will bring action in the supreme court for a writ of mandamus, to restrain the mayor and temporary commission from interfering with the work of the original commission.

BOOM SCHOOL ATHLETICS

Speakers Urge High School Students to Back Up Athletic Teams

The entire student body of the Lowell high school assembled in the Cyrus W. Irish Auditorium at 5:15 this morning for the first time since the opening of the new high school, and listened to enthusiastic addresses by Benjamin S. Pouzner, Headmaster, Henry H. Harris, Coach Jas. Liston and others on the awakening of school spirit in athletics and all other activities connected with student life. The meeting was arranged at the request of the Lowell A. D. club for the purpose of instilling in the students the national spirit.

PRES. HARDING PRAISES WORK OF RED CROSS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—President Harding in a message of welcome read at the initial session today of the national convention of the American Red Cross expressed his gratification at the steps being taken by the organization in co-operation with the Near East relief organizations.

"It has been most gratifying to learn that your executive committee has taken steps to render efficient relief in the great and appalling emergency that has arisen in the Near East," the president continued. "The readiness of your organization to meet this most distressing situation adds to our gratification in being able to turn to a great organization prepared for any task. The consciousness of this capacity to do things must contribute to the enthusiastic spirit which imbues the American Red Cross throughout every unit, and the knowledge adds to the pride and confidence of the people of the United States in having such an emergency to give expression to human sympathy and helpfulness."

Chairman John B. Payne, in explaining the action of the executive committee said that the first action of the Red Cross would be to proceed to meet the emergency considered as existing in the Near East.

"The amount to be expended was not named and no specific sum was appropriated," Mr. Payne added. "The committee's instruction was to the chairman that the job be done and if it takes more money than we have we will get it."

This statement made by the chairman was taken to mean that the Red Cross planned to go into the relief work on a large scale as the Red Cross treasury now contains about $20,000,000.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 9.—Plans agreed upon by several eastern states to prevent the sending of children from one state to another when they may become public charges, were announced here today by Dr. Elmer Potter, head of the children's bureau of the Pennsylvania department of public welfare. ### $5000 IN JEWELS TAKEN —$100,000 CASE LEFT LOCEST VALLEY, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Five thousand dollars worth of jewelry was taken from a cottage owned by Frederick P. Moore, New York banker, which adjoins the fashionable Piping Rock club, last Saturday, detectives announced today. They said they were looking for a "Mr. Jones" who entered the cottage while Mr. Moore was playing golf, telling one of the servants he was employed as valet at the banker's town house.

Among the articles missing is an expensive pair of cuff links belonging to Thomas H. Wright, wealthy St. Louis miner, who was Mr. Moore's guest.

Mr. Wright was in the cottage when "Jones" entered. The intruder visited the master's bedroom and also the top drawer in Mr. Moore's dresser was ransacked but the second drawer, in which lay a jewelry case with $100,000 worth of watches, diamonds and the welfare authorities of this state, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, and Ohio.

The action proposed is the result of a conference here of welfare officials of the seven states. Dr. Potter pointed out there was a lack of legislation to control the situation and it is planned to recommend legislation in each state to stop the transfer of children and to provide more complete supervision of private homes in which children are placed.

MEN AND WOMEN OF MASSACHUSETTS—You have a personal interest in the proposed law, to be voted on Nov. 7, to censor motion pictures—to allow one man's personal and inspired views to dictate what you can see and read in your local theatre. ## MRS. MacSWINEY AND OTHER SPEAKERS PLEAD FOR SUPPORT OF IRISH REPUBLIC

Large Audience Greeted Speakers at Associate Hall Last Evening—Addresses by Peter MacSwiney, Miss Kearns and Leo J. Madden—About $1000 in Contributions and Pledges

Despite the unpleasant weather of last evening, an audience of about 1200 assembled in Associate Hall, where Mrs. Terence MacSwiney and Peter MacSwiney, wife and brother of the late lord mayor of Cork, Miss Lydia Mary Kearns of the Irish republican army and Leo J. Madden of New York, delivered stirring addresses on subjects intimately related to the cause they espouse, the recognition of the Irish republic.

Mrs. MacSwiney and her party arrived at the hall shortly after 8 o'clock following a hurried trip over the road from Lawrence where a similar meeting had been held in the afternoon, and when the party entered the hall, the applause which greeted it was deafening. The stage platform was appropriately decorated with American and Irish republican flags, ferns and potted plants, which surrounded the framed pictures of Emmet de Valera, Padraic Pearse and Terence MacSwiney. Michael J. Sharkey of this city presided and introduced the several speakers, handing the names of Padraic Pearse, Terence MacSwiney, Harry Boland, Cathal Brugha and others equally prominent in Irish affairs of the past. At the mention of each name, Mr. Sharkey was interrupted by the applause of the audience and finally concluded by introducing as the first speaker of the evening, Mr. Peter MacSwiney, brother of the late lord mayor. In the course of his remarks, one man in the rear of the hall was ejected because of his boisterous objection to Mr. MacSwiney's reference to Michael Collins. The incident was the only one of that nature during the program, and only served to incite the speaker to greater enthusiasm in his remarks. He appealed to the audience for financial support for the republic and the collection which followed, $332.92 in cash and $340 in signed pledges was secured. It was explained that the funds were to be used for the relief of incarcerated republican soldiers, and for the support of their dependents. Mr. MacSwiney said he came to Lowell unexpectedly and was not prepared to speak. He recounted his trip to Ireland after the signing of the treaty, saying that his companion on that trip was Joe McGarrity of Philadelphia. "Irish descendants in America," he said, "go over to the country Free States and return republicans. Harry Boland and Michael Collins fought side by side in the battle of the Four Courts and Collins told Boland at that time that never would he sign an oath swearing allegiance to a British king." It was at this juncture that the objector in the rear of the hall elicited the remark that brought his removal from the gathering. Mr. MacSwiney then proceeded to tell of the manner in which Michael Collins and Harry Boland were killed, and concluded by saying that such meetings as the one held last night were a direct answer to England when that country thought that a Free State government in Ireland would pacify the Irish abroad.

Miss Kearns Speaks

Miss Kearns followed Mr. MacSwiney as speaker and gave a lengthy talk on recent affairs in Ireland. She read from documents, showing the vast difference between the Irish republican proclamation of 1916 and the Free State treaty of the present day.

"Mrs. MacSwiney and myself have come to America for two reasons," she said. "Just to try to tell you the truth about the state of affairs in Ireland. Last December the news was flashed over the wires of the world that Ireland was given a free state. Ireland has got her freedom. That is only the beautiful illustrated cover of a very fine book. We have a saying in the west of Ireland—never take the book by the cover. I say to you—don't take the treaty by its cover. It is not freedom, nor has it the shadow of freedom. We know that if one nation must have at its head the king or another country, and that king can call the parliament together, dictate to it and dissolve it, that country has not freedom. If the people of a nation must take oath of allegiance and faithfulness to the king of a foreign power, must be faithful to his heirs and successors, that country has not freedom, and not alone has the present generation not freedom, but that generation is selling the future generation into slavery.

"We know that if a country willingly takes upon itself to keep and maintain as governor general a representative of a foreign power, that country has not freedom. We know that if a nation gives to any foreign power the control of its five parks and keeps and maintains an army of occupation in these ports, that country has not freedom. These are some of the things Ireland has been offered by way of freedom and we have refused them."

Leo J. Madden of New York was introduced at the conclusion of Mrs. Kearns' address and made a strenuous and fruitful appeal for funds. That his appeal brought results is witnessed by the amount collected and pledged. He announced that Miss Elizabeth Roche will act as local treasurer of the fund.

Mrs. MacSwiney introduced Mrs. MacSwiney was next introduced but owing to the lateness of the hour, her talk was very brief. She thanked the people of Lowell for their generous support of the republican cause for which her husband gave his life. She spoke briefly in the original Gaelic language and made a great impression on those who understood her. To reporters she afterwards said:

"The republic of Ireland is still in existence as it was before the treaty when President de Valera was at its head. We are against the treaty because it does not embody the great ideals of the republic and because through the treaty England hoped to divide the Irish people and then take advantage of the situation."

"England was afraid of America when Lloyd George begged for peace. They could not have dared to carry on the fight because they were paying their soldiers with money borrowed from America. You see, they were paying the Black and Tans a pound a day."

"There is not a civil war in Ireland, because England is still fighting in Ireland through the medium of the Free State soldiers."

"The people in Ireland are not informed of the true conditions in their own land because there is an armed guard stationed at every printing press which compels our newspapers to publish only that which suits best."

"How can the people of America help the cause of the republic? They can help it by joining Irish societies which stick to the ideals of the republic and by keeping up the boycott against British goods. It is that, as much as anything else that brought England around. The people can really do more here than at home." During the evening, songs were rendered by John McMahon and Miss Margaret Dean, while Miss Margaret Mahoney entertained with a stirring recitation on Ireland. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. MacSwiney and her party repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Sharkey, 517 School street.

CONSTANTINE DECLARES ABDICATION REAL

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(By the Associated Press) Former King Constantine of Greece in an interview with the Petit Parisien in Palermo, informed the correspondent that his abdication was real, as he desired to get out of the kingdom. He added that he intended to come to Paris at some later date.

Answering an inquiry as to where he intended to live, Constantine said he would stay in Palermo for two or three months and then go to Paris. He added that his plans might be altered if he could not leave the villa which he wants.

Replying to a question whether his abdication was final, Constantine said he abandoned the throne in 1917 in obedience to allied pressure, but without abdicating, and therefore remained king.

"Now, however," he added, "King Constantine has abdicated, and one abdicated definitely. King Constantine, besides, intends to retire and remain out of public life."

served in the rooms. Entertainment was furnished and remarks made by Arthur J. O'Neil, Faithful Navigator, Andrew Molloy, P.F.N. and John B. Hart, G. K.

The feature address of the occasion was delivered by James C. Reilly, assistant district attorney. Mr. Reilly spoke at length on Knights of Columbus activities in Middlesex county, saying that its members exerted a wonderful influence on the community in general and congratulating the members present on their showing yesterday.

Charles J. Landers, F.D.D., was chairman of the committee in charge of yesterday's affair, assisted by Sir Knights Edward F. Slattery, J. Eugene Mullin, Thomas Tobin and Peter Farrington.

BOOMERS FOR BIG NEW HOTEL ARE LEGION IN LOWELL

Chamber of Commerce Officials Working Diligently to Push Movement for Modern Hostelry—Local Merchants Strong For New Hotel Idea—Real Estate Men Are Also Enthusiastic Boomers—Hotel Site Vital Problem

Civic sentiment in Lowell in favor of the purchase without further delay of a centrally-located building site and the erection of a modern, fire-proof hotel providing ample accommodations for profitable Lowell patrons as well as that of the traveling public and sales representatives of American commerce, is rapidly growing.

A Sun reporter today obtained from numerous eminently progressive Lowell citizens engaged in diversified mercantile activities, the prevailing public sentiment and the growing lines of modern business generally to be found in the upward progress of a five municipality, emphatic views concerning the present lack of commodious and up-to-date public hostelry services in Lowell and vicinity today. There is a general feeling of optimism, however, that within a brief period of time, concerted action will be taken to secure the erection of a large hotel.

There is a feeling of genuine optimism and promise through every channel of Lowell's business and mercantile world. There is sentiment very strongly expressed by leading Lowell citizens that the time is at hand for adopting preliminary measures for investigating the subject of a modern hotel building plan, that would result in opening the pathway to the actual selection of a suitable site and the construction of the objective—a Lowell hotel that would be a hotel in something more than name only.

The chamber of commerce officials have been working diligently for many months past, doing everything possible to keep alive and push along the movement for a new, modern hostelry within the city limits. Officials of this body have been calling attention repeatedly to the population of the city which is not at the present time adequately served in hotel accommodations.

The chamber has issued from time to time comprehensive booklets giving intimid details of the city's many prosperous branches of industry, its population divided into races, etc., and descriptions of its important businesses and its many community, fraternal and civic organizations, including clubs and associate bodies that always bring numerous visitors to Lowell frequently in the period of a year, when anniversaries are celebrated or special observances held having to do with Lowell bodies affiliated with the welfare of the municipality.

The chamber of commerce has done in the past, and is doing today, everything possible to promote the new hotel idea, and considerable correspondence has been conducted with responsible parties anxious to aid the local effort, now reaching considerable proportions.

Business Men Enthusiastic

Not until Lowell has a building worthy of being called a hostelry of rank comparing with those erected or being erected in other New England cities about the size of Lowell, will the city increase in prosperity to any great degree. That is the frank opinion of reputable Lowell business men today, and it is not a new opinion at all, but just a repetition of the convictions of past years that a new hotel of proper size to accommodate the needs of a growing industrial, commercial and social community, is badly needed and was never really so necessary to the city's healthy life and civic activities as right now at the present time.

Interviews have been secured from numerous leading business men of Lowell, the number of callings represented in the series of interviews ranging from dry goods merchants to purveyors of theatrical amusements and, of course, real estate holders and property sales agencies.

If anyone in Lowell has harbored any feeling that the "hotel idea" has been relegated to the discard, he is not in touch with the conditions as they are

CARTRIDGE CO. MOVING SO. LOWELL PLANT

The work of moving the machinery of the South Lowell plant of the United States Cartridge company to the Lawrence street mills, was started yesterday and it is expected that the large plant will be vacated within two or three weeks.

There are about 125 men and women employed at the South Lowell plant, and these people will be kept at work until their machines are moved. They will be paid for a day or two or until such time as the machines are set and ready for operation in the new quarters. Asked what would be done with the South Lowell plant, one of the officials said it would be placed on the market.

It was learned this afternoon that the company is gradually increasing its working force and is very busy in the manufacture of commercial ammunition and automobile radiators.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—In order to place refunding operations for the short dated debt purely on a longer term basis, Secretary Mellon is offering for subscription an issue of about $500,000,000 of four and one-quarter per cent. 30 year treasury bonds—the first government bond issue since the fourth Liberty loan issue of the last month before the armistice.

The new issue, as announced last night, will be dated Oct. 15, 1922, bearing interest from that date, payable April 15 and Oct. 15, on a semi-annual basis. Although the date of maturity is Oct. 15, 1952, the bonds may be redeemed at the government's option after Oct. 15, 1947. Besides better bonds with interest coupons attached, in denominations of $100, $500, $1000, $5000 and $10,000, the issue will comprise registered bonds in denominations of from $100 to $50,000 although applications for any amount in excess of $10,000 will be received subject to allotment.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Federal injunctions will be applied for to prevent proprietors of certain groceries stores and soft drink establishments selling intoxicating liquors during the American Legion convention week. United States District Attorney Burns announced today.

AUTO HIT'S WAGON

A wagon owned and driven by Charles Fargar of Chelmsford Centre was struck by an automobile operated by Oscar Lamy of 631 Merrimack street yesterday.

The accident occurred in Chelmsford Centre and Mr. and Mrs. Loula Kaparos of Cumiskey's alley, this city, who were riding with Mr. Fargar, were slightly injured.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Rosa Palermo, aged 7, and residing at 7 Chapel street, was slightly injured Saturday night when she was struck by an automobile in Gorham street in front of Saunders' market. The machine was operated by William Brown of Billerica. The child received treatment at St. John's hospital.

ment. All will carry the usual tax-exemption provisions. To the extent that Victory notes or treasury certificates of the series maturing Dec. 15, 1922, are tendered in payment, Secretary Mellon reserved the right to allot additional bonds above the amount of $500,000,000.

BUILDINGS BURNED IN EAST DRACUT

Fire early last evening destroyed the blacksmith shop and milk shed on the John Bailey farm in East Dracut. The cause of the fire is not known. Considerable personal property in the building was lost, including a ton-truck, farming tools and dairy accessories.

Dracut and Methuen firemen responded to the first alarm but were unable to save the buildings, although they prevented the fire from spreading to the Bailey homestead nearby.

THREE-PIECE COSTUMES

Three-piece costumes of marle and velveteen have straight-line frocks with tops of broadened crepe de chine. They have round necklines and practically no trimming.

PAINS ACROSS SMALL OF BACK

Husband Helped in Housework—
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Strong

Foster, Oregon.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains across the small of my back. They bothered me so badly that I could do no work only with the help of my husband. One day he saw the 'ad.' in our paper telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is doing for women, so I began to take it. It has helped me wonderfully. I am feeling fine, do all my housework and washing for seven in the family. I have been irregular too, and now am all right. I am telling my friends what it has done for me and am sure it will do good for others. You can use this letter as a testimonial. I will stand up for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound any time."—Mrs. Wm. J. JUNKKE, Foster, Oregon.

Doing the housework for a family of seven is some task. If you, as a housewife, are troubled with backache, irregularities, are easily tired out and irritable, or have other disagreeable ailments caused by some weakness, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. Let it help you.

Hayes Accused of Murder

Arrests were contemplated for the present, they said. Hayes, when confronted with Schneider as the latter retold his story, exclaimed: "He's a liar!" According to Schneider, who admits he has been told the story by a girl, he was standing on a street corner with Hayes and Leo Kaufman, when they saw the girl pass with her stepfather, Nicholas Hammer. He was jealous of the stepfather, he said, and when he told the others of his suspicions, they agreed to follow the pair. They searched first through Buclinch Park where Kaufman left them. Schneider and Hayes then proceeded to the nearby Phillips farm. About 11 o'clock, Schneider said, they approached the oak apple tree under which had been found the bodies of Mrs. Mills and her son. They were later found and Hayes pointed to two figures beneath the tree, exclaiming: "There they are. Now, we'll fix them."

Hayes, Schneider declared, whipped out a pistol and began to shoot. When the pair collapsed, Schneider said, he went forward, struck a match, and then turned to Hayes, exclaiming: "Great God, man, you've made a mistake."

The two then fled, according to the statement. Schneider declared he did not know how the throat of Mrs. Mills was cut or who had laid the bodies out under the tree, carefully adjusting their clothing after they had been slain.

He nor his companions, he asserted, had not touched the bodies and they saw nothing of the love letters written by Mrs. Mills, which were found scattered about the scene. He declared he never intended vigorously to work on the case, indicating clearly that they did not believe the double slaying had been wholly cleared up by Schneider's statement.

Schneider, in his statement today, said he had gone back to the scene with the Hammer girl partly out of curiosity and partly because he wanted to show her how near she had come to death because of her walk with her stepfather.

When word of the arrest was taken to the home of Mrs. Frances Hall, widow of the slain clergyman, who has been repeatedly questioned about the case, Miss Sally Peters, her most intimate friend and adviser, said:

"Isn't that fine. What has Mr. Stricker got to say for himself now for the way he has been treating the case and Willie (Willie) Stevens, secretary of the Hammer family?"

When James Mills, husband of the dead choir singer, was apprised of the arrest he was more bitter.

It was only after repeated verbal batterings that Schneider broke down and accused Hayes of firing the fatal shots. Hayes, who was present, denounced Schneider as a liar and accused Schneider of stealing a gold watch from the pockets of the dead minister, whom, he said, they found lying beside Mrs. Mills. His story was that he and Schneider were continuing their search for Hammer and his stepdaughter, when they heard several shots ring out and saw an automobile dart from DeKuss's lane. They ran toward the spot whence the shots had come, he was quoted as saying, and found Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills dead. He declared Schneider snatched the minister's watch and that they both ran.

Schneider denied this charge vigorously.

tortured for her recovery. In the case of Mrs. Allard, there is a possible fractured skull and probable internal injuries, while the woman is also suffering from an injury to her shoulder. Mr. Lavallee sustained a broken shoulder and fractured ribs, while Mr. Allard has several fractured ribs and a bruised shoulder.
The accident occurred at about the same spot where Robert Busby, another resident of this city, lost his life in an automobile collision last Friday evening. As far as could be learned, Mr. and Mrs. Lavallee and Mr. and Mrs. Allard were on their way to Lawrence in a Ford automobile owned and operated by Mr. Lavallee. When a spot was reached in front of the Methuen armory, an automobile owned and operated by Manuel S. Martin of 61 Driscoll street, Peabody, came alone on its way to this city. When the two machines

Word of the accident was immediately sent to the Methuen police station and a few minutes later Officers Joseph Hutchinson and Thomas McCarron appeared on the scene in an automobile and conveyed the injured people to St. John's hospital in this city. In the car with Mr. Martin were his wife, his son and his mother and all escaped without injury.

Boom School Athletics

cessity of backing up the athletic teams which represent the school throughout the year. The hind was taxed to capacity and judging by the nearly response on the part of the audience, the present season will witness the greatest display of moral support in the history of the school.
It was George Wood of the Ad club who first conceived the idea of placing Lowell on the horizon of sport and at recent meeting of the members of the club, it was decided to back up the high school in its athletic events in every way possible. Today's meeting marked the first step in that direction and with the co-operation of headmaster Harris, weekly gatherings of a similar character will be held in the high school hall. Mr. Harris presided at this morning's meeting and appealed to the students to get behind the team and give them an added incentive to victory. He congratulated the Ad club for its foresight in realizing the necessity for school spirit and called upon Coach James Liston of the football team for brief remarks. Coach Liston confirmed his talk to the football team, saying that the cheers of supporters had much to do with the team's success. He expressed regret at the unfortunate injury to Peter Sheehan in last Saturday's game and paid the star backfield man a worthy tribute.

Charles J. Keyes of the Ad club was then called upon to lead the school in the singing of the Lowell booster song, written by Edward J. Conroy. It was first sung by the boys and then by the girls. At the request of Mr. Harris, the team, class sang the song unassisted and made a great impression. The cheering body then took up the chorus and with the assistance of Mr. Keyes, rendered the song in spirited fashion, loud giving every evidence that they had grasped the meaning of the all important enthusiasm.

Ben Pouzner was introduced and gave a 20-minute address on the enthusiasm necessary to the success, not only of athletic teams, but also literary clubs, musical clubs and debating societies. He emphasized the fact that good students are, above all, essential to the success of a school and while athletics should be given a boom, the educational part should not be lost sight of.

Following Mr. Pouzner's talk, the school cheer leaders were called upon to lead the students in rehearsing the football cheers which will be used in the game with Manchester high next Thursday. It is at this game that the Ad club proposes to launch its major drive in supporting the team.

At next Monday's meeting, the principal speaker will be Hon. Perry D. Thompson, who has always taken an active interest in high school activities. The Lowell Rotary club will also be asked to co-operate in making the new venture a success.

CHEERS FOR THE GIANTS

Thousands Acclaim World Champs — "Thanks, Folks," Says McGraw

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (By the Associated Press.)—Thousands of the spectators crowded about the Giants clubhouse after the game, cheering the victorious Nationals after the final out. The police crowd. They laughed at the policemen who tried to drive them away and called for each of the Giant players.

First they bowed for Arthur Neft. Artie came to the door in his bathrobe. They gave him a rousing cheer and shouted for him. He came on in every one of the Giants had appeared. Cunningham, the young Giant centerfielder, whose work in the two games of the series was a big factor for the winners, came in for a great share of this hero worship.

McGraw, as he left the Giant dug-out after the game, was surrounded by a band of fans. They carried him to the clubhouse and before permitting him to go in and congratulate his players, insisted that he make a speech. He said two words: "Thanks, folks," and went inside.

CATHOLIC NEWS

According to an announcement made at St. Peter's church yesterday, His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell will come to that church on Thursday, October 25 and will administer the rite of confirmation to a class of about 400 children. More than 600 members of the church Holy Name society received communion at 7:30 o'clock mass. Rev. D. J. Keleher, Ph.D., was the celebrant and he was assisted in the giving of communion by Rev. Daniel J. Hefferman and Rev. Peter E. Linahan. Rev. John M. Stanton was the celebrant at the 11 o'clock mass. He also preached the sermon.

The celebrant of the 11 o'clock mass at the Immaculate Conception church was Rev. William V. Noonan, O.S.A., who has been celebrating from Rome. Rev. Martin Norton preached the sermon. Rev. Owen P. McQuaid was the celebrant at 5 o'clock mass and was assisted in the giving of communion to the Holy Name society by Very Rev. Lawrence P. Tiche. Devotions will be held at the church every evening this week at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. William P. Brennan was the celebrant of the 9 o'clock and 11 o'clock masses at St. Margaret's. He gave two interesting sermons on the condition of the starving people in Calcutta, Austria and Poland. Rev. A. F. O'Brien celebrated the 6 and 7:30 masses, while the pastor, Rev. Charles J. Gallagher, celebrated the children's mass in the new chapel at 9 o'clock. October devotions will be held on Wednesday and Friday nights of the present week at 7:30 o'clock. It was announced that the parish visitation which has been going on for two weeks or more will be completed within a short time.

More than 100 members of Bishop Delany assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, received communion at the 5 o'clock mass in St. Michaels. Rev. John J. Shaw, the pastor, celebrated the mass. Rev. Francis J. Mullin assisted in giving communion. Rev. James P. Lynch celebrated the 11 o'clock mass with Rev. Thomas J. Heagney preaching the sermon and making the announcements.

It was announced that on Friday afternoon and evening a cake sale will be held in Gagnon's store, the proceeds of which will go to the altar society. The charity guild will meet in guild hall at 7:30 o'clock. Devotions will be held in the church on Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7:30 o'clock.

At St. Patrick's church on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock a requiem mass for the repose of the soul of the late pastor, Rt. Rev. Wm. O'Brien will be celebrated. Rev. Thomas J. McDonough celebrated the 11 o'clock mass and Rev. Dr. Supple, O.S.A., was celebrant of the 3:30 and 5:30 masses. Rev. Joseph A. Curtin celebrated the 7 o'clock mass, at which the Holy Name society received communion. October devotions will be held every evening this week at 7:30 o'clock.

$185,000 CARGO FOR NEAR EAST

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—The Sanguis, the first relief ship from Philadelphia to carry food and medical supplies to the devastated regions of Syria and the near east, will sail Wednesday. Local flour mills yesterday worked all day to prevent the delay of the sailing. The cargo, worth approximately $185,000, will be distributed chiefly to the orphanages in the stricken district.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless, no-good feeling, all that of a sick, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitutes for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit, free and so—Adv.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By the Theatres' Own Press Agents.

B. F. KELTH'S THEATRE

"A Scene in a Russian Village," with Katouscka as the star, will be the big feature of the present week's bill at the B. F. Kelth's theatre. There are five persons in the company—three men and two women—and the act is a direct offspring of the famous "Chauve Souri," which has so delighted New York for the past six months. All of the actors in the piece are straight Russians, who have most marvelous adventures in escaping from the soviet government and getting to this country.

ASTHMA
No cure for it, but welcome relief is often brought by
VICKS VAPORUB
Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

The act is a true picture of old Russian life, with its odd scenes. There is comedy, singing and dancing in it.

We don't need to be told very much about Sandy Shaw, who is the second feature of the bill. Shaw is a Scottish comedian, and he is giving his own songs and stories this year. His act is a varied one. His characteristics are rated very highly, while the atmosphere of Auld Scotland which he throws about the entire act will be very keenly appreciated.

A bit of musical comedy called "Typical Topical Tales," will be introduced by Lou Miller and Alice Bradford, a team which has made its name synonymous with the best that vaudeville holds. Their voices are of real musical quality, and their novelty attachments are worthy of special comment.

Mildred Reed and Harold Selman will present a novelty skit, with songs, called "On the Roof." The title furnishes a splendid core for an act which is lively all the way through.

If there is such a thing as a three-act, then Jack Adams and the Thompson Sisters will give it—scored for good music. They use saxophones, marimbaphones, banjos and their voices, and they don't fail to introduce some comedy.

Some remarkable acrobatic feats are performed by the Vedleys. They have a special setting called "In the Moonlight," and it is said to be wonderfully fascinating.

John and Arthur Keeley will give a bright act called "Fun in a Sporting Goods Store."

THE STRAND
Lincoln J. Carter's great melodramatic success of the stage, "The Fast Mail," which was recently adapted for the screen, will be shown at the Strand as the headline in a program of rare excellence, starting with matinee today. The reason for such an extraordinary bill is because Manager Morgan is trying, in a small way, to make the fifth anniversary week of this theatre one long to be remembered. "The Fast Mail" is without question the biggest thriller that the screen has ever given the public. Don't miss it. Then there is Gladys Walton, the greatest and since Mary Pickford, in her newest film offering,

"The Trouper," as well as the usual comedy and Weekly. You will agree with us that this offering is most exceptional.

RIALTO THEATRE
"Ashamed of Parents," a Warner Brothers production which tells the story of a young college man who after a courtship with a society belle, is ashamed to reveal to her that his father is a simple cobbler, is the feature of the screen booking at the Rialto theatre this afternoon. Neal Hart in "Rangeland" is another extra good picture in the same production. There is also a comedy, "No Vacancies," an episode of "In the Days of Buffalo Bill" and the Pathe News.

MERRIMACK ST. THEATRE
"Broadway Rose," the glittering, fascinating production of New York life with the beautiful and talented Mae Murray in the title role, opened an extended engagement at the Merrimack Square theatre yesterday with capacity houses the rule at every performance. It is one of the most successful and wholly alluring productions ever presented here. As an added attraction, the management has secured Carl Hutchins, noted baritone, who sings appropriate selections during the showing of the photoplay.

GRACE CHURCH MEN'S CLUB
The Grace Church Men's club will open its 1922-1923 season tomorrow evening with a dinner, business meeting and address by Hon. John Jacob Rogers. The congressman will speak on "Current Events in Washington," and the general public is invited to hear him. He will speak directly after the business meeting which should be finished by 7:30 o'clock.

WAMSET STAFF ASSOCIATION
President Freeman Lightowler occupied the chair at the meeting of Wamset Staff association, which was held yesterday in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street. Reports of committees were submitted, routine business was transacted and it was announced that a drill and class initiation will be held in the near future.

ORIENTAL EMBROIDERY

STRANGLING NEW ENGLAND

Utterly astounding were the revelations brought out at the hearing before the Interstate Commerce commission at the state house on Friday, relative to the damaging effect of the railroad discrimination against the port of Boston.

It seems passing strange that our railroads and shipping interests have not made a protest loud enough to direct public attention strongly against this unjust treatment of Boston and the people and industries of Massachusetts. It is easy now to realize why the New England manufacturers are at a disadvantage in competition with those further south. Present conditions are such that relief must be secured or else the port of Boston will be deserted by the ships of commerce.

Now it appears that the Cunard and other lines that run passenger vessels from Boston to Europe are seriously thinking of dropping Boston as a port of destination because they cannot get cargoes of exports on the return trip. In many cases they have to purchase sand for ballast or use water, whereas they formerly had sufficient grain to serve the purpose.

It is said that the fault lies with the business men of Boston and New England because for financial reasons they ship exports by the cheapest routes. That is a necessity as every business man wants at least equal advantages in meeting competition. It must be remembered that in many lines of business the margin between success and failure would be more than covered by the railroad differentials operating against the port of Boston.

This is a matter for congress to deal with if it be not satisfactorily settled by the Interstate Commerce commission, which has obtained all the more important information bearing upon the subject at the hearings held in Boston last week. Another hearing will be held at Washington in November when, perhaps, additional testimony will be given to show the ruinous effect of railroad rate discrimination on the shipment of exports to the port of Boston.

In addition to the direct effect of the differentials, there is an indirect effect which is equally detrimental to the business of the port of Boston. Here is an example of how it works: Charles B. Baldwin, transportation manager for the United Shoe Machinery company testified that his company prefers to ship its goods from Boston rather than New York for the reason that it costs from $150,000 to $200,000 more per year to ship by the latter port. But, on account of the lack of shipping at Boston, they were compelled to ship from New York despite the extra cost. Various other instances of this kind were brought out and all strengthened the arguments against the differentials as wholly unjustifiable and ruinous to the trade of Boston and New England.

THE PLAN B RUMPUIS

The rumpus that has been stirred up at city hall over the Plan B petition, seems to have been wholly unnecessary. It is rather surprising that Mayor Brown should have shown such opposition to having Plan B submitted to the people. He would have at least an equal chance with other candidates in seeking re-election under Plan B if it should be adopted. He has made a bitter fight and has, we presume, proved that there were false signatures attached to the petition. The charge is one that should be thoroughly investigated with a view to the conviction and punishment of those who secretly conspired to defeat the petition by forging the names of voters. Whoever has been guilty of this, should be punished to the full extent of the law. It is a well known fact that there has been a strong public sentiment in favor of Plan B, and that being the case, no harm can come of submitting it to the people. If it goes on the ballot, the electorate will decide as between Plan B and the present charter which is working satisfactorily if the elected officials would only respect its provisions.

TURKISH AUDACITY

The Turks have become very cocky during the last few weeks and have presumed even to threaten the allies if they do not get possession of Eastern Thrace before action can be taken on their demands by the Mudania conference. It seems the Turks are inviting opposition and even war; but apparently they realize what a helpless plight the allies are in at the present time. Unfortunately they are encouraged in this bold attitude, by their friendly relations with France, whose statesmen seem to be diametrically opposed to the policy of England in the Near East and in reference to the extent to which the Turks should be allowed re-entrance to Europe. Fortunately, for the present at least, France has decided to act in concert with England in refusing the Turkish demand for immediate possession of Thrace. With eastern Thrace in their possession, they would be in a position to enter upon further conquests and possibly to attack Greece or some of the newly established states. Should they precipitate another war, they would doubtless be joined by Russian forces with the result that all of Europe might once more be embroiled in a destructive war.

The only hope that such a possibility can be averted lies in the fact that England may be able to induce France to refuse the Turkish demands. It appears that Bonar Law, the leader of the conservatives in England, has made the proposition that if France continues to side with the Turks against England, then the latter shall withdraw her armies of occupation from the Rhine district. That would be embarrassing to France; but judging from recent statements from the French ministry, it would appear that France is not afraid of handling Germany even if she has to do it alone. When England urged a reduction in the amount of reparations to be collected from Germany, France demurred and said she would collect the full amount provided for in the treaty if she had to do it alone. Thus the situation is filled with possibilities of future trouble, which only tactful diplomacy, or perhaps outside interference, can avert.

THE ELECTION COMMISSION

The election commission, of which Hugh C. McOsker is chairman, has removed three lines by Mayor Brown and twice reinstated by the city council. The mayor has appointed a new commission to take its place so that there may be some question as to which is the legal board. When it comes to a conflict of this kind between the mayor and the council, the latter has the authority under the charter to overrule the mayor's decision as to appointments. It can remove any head of a department or any commission of his appointment as appears from Section 36, Part 2 of the city charter which says:

"The city council may by a two-thirds vote of all its members, but only after granting a public hearing, suspend or remove from office, without the consent of the mayor, each and every administrative head of a department, or any member or members of boards or commissions for such cause as the city council voting, by yeas and nays, may in its judgment deem sufficient."

That should be conclusive in any conflict of authority between the mayor and the council relative to the removal of commissions or department heads. If the council exercises the authority thus vested in it, any counter appointment by the mayor would have no legal effect.

BANK ROBBERIES INCREASE

At the national convention of the American Bankers' association, alarming reports were read covering the number of crimes listed during the past year, with bankers as the victims. The convention was told of 406 burglaries and attempted burglaries in 37 states, banking institutions being the chief sufferers. More than 140 bankers were robbed during the past twelve months by highwaymen and sneak thieves. The holdups were larger in number than the report of the previous year indicated. In an effort to cover all cases of crime that has to do with banks and banking, the "A. B. A." committee in charge of bringing out the salient facts in cases of crime reported from the 37 states, has now decided to broaden its activities by investigating all hold-ups, burglaries or felonious crimes perpetrated on an officer or employee of a bank outside of its premises while they are in discharge of banking business and where life is placed in jeopardy. This amends a rule heretofore restricting investigation of crimes committed upon the bank's premises.

Judging from the report of Probation Officer Cronin, it does not appear that there is any diminution in the number of arrests for drunkenness. That being so, one of two things is obvious. Either the people are drinking moonshine and taking the risks of its vile effects, or else they are buying real whiskey, which is difficult to find, and paying extraordinary prices for the same.

If the officials who seize liquor in the enforcement of the prohibition law are free to use it for their own use, some of the dry vets will be looking for jobs as enforcement officials. It is but a short time since a jury empaneled on a liquor case drank all the evidence and allowed it was the genuine stuff.

Incidentally, the United States has twelve speedy, well-armed destroyers on the way to Turkish waters to see that American trade interests are not disturbed by the warring Turks and their allied misions, who appear for the moment to be resting upon their arms.

So far as appears, the election commission, headed by Chairman McOsker, acted in good faith and with perfect honesty in handling the Plan B petition, and if there existed a conspiracy to defeat the petition, the commission was not a party to it.

Not in the west is Thine appearance ended. Neither from dark shall Thy renown be, nor from firmament in spaces lo, splendid. Lighten her beacon-fires for Thee; Holies them and hides and drowns them; and an' they be, Thy shining throughs them together, kindies them afar. Showeth, O Love, Thy multitude of lovers. Souls that shall know Thee and the saints that are.

Father and Son

A man known among his friends as "Little Fleck"—owing to his lack of inches—has a son, just returned from abroad, who happens to be unusually tall. The father has a good reason for being proud of the son as the son has been proud of his father, but in the last few days the lesser of the two has done a good deal of introducing of "the boy" to friends. At his club one evening the little man stood his son in front of an ancient and distinguished member, and, grating up, such as it was, he said: "This is the youngest son of my father, the (nearest point of St. Paul's cathedral, remarked: "Allow me to introduce my son." "Ah," observed the distinguished member, "A block off the old ship, I perceive."

Hard Man to Follow

It was rather late for Jones to be getting home. Walking up the street from the station, he heard some one following him. He increased his speed and the steps quickened also. Jones felt he must not reveal his terror by looking back. He turned quickly down a side street. The footsteps followed. He decided into an alley, but was still pursued. In desperation he jumped up a wall, ran up a slope and into a churchyard, where he crouched panting in the shadow of a tombstone. The man behind still followed. Quivering with fear, Jones awaited his pursuer. "What do you want?" he asked. "I say," exclaimed the stranger, mopping his brow, "do you always go home this way? I want to see Mr. Brown, and the man at the station told me to follow you, as you lived next door. Have we much more of this to go through before we get there?"

Because I Had a Friend

Life never would have been so rich, to me so well worth living, if it were not for that cheering word you spoke, But for that cheery smile. The burden had so heavy grown, My heart was filled with gloom, I never would have reached the goal, Had you, friend, not been there. Because, because I had a friend, One who was real and true, Because your friendship did not fail Just when I needed you. I had the will to do; Because I knew I had a friend, I've had no cause to rue.

Oh, there are records of the past That tell of trust sublime; Of friendships that survived the test Of doubt, disaster, time. But I know one that's up to date, That had not had an end When a man defeated fought and won.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

Undoubtedly several large gatherings will be necessary at the Memorial Auditorium before all the details incident with the operation of the huge plant get into proper working order. It is not to be wondered at that more or less confusion occurs when a crowd of 4000 is being handled. That is a big crowd for Lowell and something the city has not been accustomed to. The Gall-Curtis concert, Friday night, brought several incidents to light that need corrective measures applied and without doubt the board of trustees will solve all such problems in due time. But, outside of the jurisdiction of the trustees, is one of the biggest problems in connection with the use of the building. It is the vehicular traffic problem and it is so important that it will call for the closest cooperation between the trustees, the police and the management of attractions. Friday night there was such a jam of automobiles and street cars in East Merrimack street, that traffic was at a standstill and it was all caused, at least, a great deal of it, by machines parked at the curb between the river bridge and Fayette street. If crowds are to be handled in any kind of proper fashion, the street must be strictly closed to all parking between these limits during the time of a concert of the magnitude of that of Friday evening. If there is any laxity, immediate confusion will result and amidst confusion accidents are very probable.

Madame Gall-Curtis's recital also showed the need of more ticket takers. The crowd in the main entrance was altogether too large and congested at times. There are five ticket offices, three for the front and two for the driveway entrance and there should have been five ticket takers Friday night instead of two. It is extremely uncomfortable for women, slightly clad, to remain in line for several minutes and there is absolutely no occasion for it. By using both entrances and employing the necessary number of ticket takers there should be little, if any, waiting and if it should be raining or snowing the crowd could be escorted to trophy hall and tickets taken inside. There was some complaint, too, about the temporary use of the Auditorium Friday night and that was up to the custodian of the building. He should have seen to it that the crowd could be escorted to trophy hall and tickets taken inside. ## Franklin, N. H., Boy Football Victim

FRANKLIN, N. H., Oct. 9.—The first fatality in the football season in this state occurred today in the death of Frank Massa, a member of the Franklin High school eleven. The boy sustained a fractured skull Saturday in a game with the junior team of St. Anselm's college.

Third Trial of Arthur C. Burch

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—Today's superior court calendar called for the third trial of Arthur C. Burch of Evanston, Ill., charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, a young Los Angeles broker, in Beverly Glen, a suburb, Aug. 5, 1921. It was expected, however, that the trial would be continued a week.

Desperate Fighting Near Vladivostok

VLADIVOSTOK, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—Desperate fighting between the "red" and "white" armies is in progress on the Spassk front. The battle is the severest recorded since the Japanese evacuation began. The soviet forces are reported rushing troops with airplanes and tanks toward Vladivostok. The defenders are offering furious opposition.

"Bill" Hart in Fight Against Death

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—Continued improvement in the condition of William S. (Bill) Hart, film star, who has been critically ill with typhoid fever and complications, was announced today. Hart's strong constitution and remarkable vitality, have played an important role in his fight against death, and unless new complications develop there is little further danger, Dr. Leon J. Roth, who is attending Hart, said.

Coke For Bostonians Arrives

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Two thousand tons of coke, which will be sold to Bostonians at cost, was under the hatches of a steamer at a navy pier today. The fuel, purchased in the Alabama fields, was the first shipment of the coke recently purchased by Mayor James M. Curley under a special appropriation of the city council. Unloading of the cargo was delayed until the receipt of word from Washington as to whether it might be stored in a navy yard pocket.

Two Killed in Political Battle in Havana

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 9.—Fighting which arose out of the heated political campaign being waged preliminary to coming partial elections resulted in the death of two persons and the wounding of eight others last night at Guanajay, near here. The contending factions were members of the liberal party and of a political organization known as "friends of the people."

Mrs. Mealey Held in $10,000

BROOKLINE, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Katharine Mealey, who shot her husband, Frank Mealey in their home last Saturday, pleaded not guilty in district court today, to a charge of assault with intent to kill. She was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing on Wednesday. Mealey's condition was reported as slightly improved today although still critical. The shooting followed a quarrel.

TO RESIST TURK REOCCUPATION

the recent reverses to the Greek arms and to settle once for all the question of Turkish re-entry into Europe.

The general evaded the questions regarding the strength of his available forces which reliable local estimates place at about 45,000 men. The troops are well fed, equipped and conditioned.

GREEKS PROTEST BRITISH ATTITUDE

ATHENS, Oct. 9.—The Greek members of the chamber of deputies for Thrace have sent a statement to the British press declaring that if the British people believe the re-entry of the Turks into Europe will assure peace, they are suffering from a lamentable illusion.

The Thracians predict that before many months the British and French mandates for Palestine, Mesopotamia and Syria will be challenged, the Egyptian question reopened and the Gallipoli campaign will have been fought over again. They declare that, in avoiding armed conflict today the British are merely postponing the inevitable, and that in the near future they will have to fight under infinitely worse conditions than at present.

If, nevertheless, Greece is to be stripped of her new territories, says the statement, she ought to be spared the crushing blow of being swamped with 1,300,000 refugees. The signatories demand that all troops remain permanently in Thrace to save the non-Turkish population from massacre or deportation.

At this moment it is evident that the army has little intention of evacuating Thrace without a struggle, whatever the orders from Athens may be. Events march swiftly in an atmosphere of turmoil such as exists throughout Greece today.

Immediately after Gen. Leonardopolos had passed through the cheering columns of troops to the near headquarters in the government palace, he received The Associated Press correspondent with whom he freely discussed the situation.

In reply to the question whether Thrace was going to fight, he said, speaking in French: "The whole army asks nothing better than the opportunity. We shall not surrender Thrace. Anyone who saw the soldiers along the Rue Karagatch today knows instinctively that my words reflect absolutely the spirit of the troops."

"We are one, in an inflexible determination to keep the new Greece, no difference of opinion exists on this question. The Turks may think we are beaten, but let them try to prove it on the soil of Thrace."

"Things are momentarily implicated and unsettled in Greece, owing to the revolution, but the change of government has served only to stimulate the troops and to unite them."

"I have been particularly gratified to find the sturdy morale which exists among the trained veterans who now sustain a broken leg in Saturday's game with Concord. N. H. high school will keep him out of the lineup for the remainder of the season. Sheehan, who had been playing a spectacular game all afternoon, tackled half back back and in the rush which followed, the Lowell man was pinned beneath the weight of half a dozen players, breaking his leg just below the knee. He was rushed to Margaret Pillsbury general hospital where an X-ray revealed the injured member. It is thought by physicians that the player had broken his leg just below the knee. He will be kept in the hospital for at least three weeks."

Lowell high lost the game 27 to 0, but this fact was offset by the more serious loss of Sheehan whose services to the team are indispensable. He was the mainstay of the squad, the man around whom Concord "Jimmy" Liston had built the majority of his plays, and his absence from the lineup places the local team at a serious disadvantage. Coach Liston and several of the players visited Sheehan at the Concord hospital yesterday and reported that he was resting comfortably.

Berton Bralley's Daily Poem

AVOCATIONS

There's a true romantic glamor to the wielding of a hammer, And the song the saw is singing makes glad music on the air, There's a simple sort of pleasure when you scheme and plan and measure For the making of a table or the shaping of a chair; Though you're awkward and ungainly and your blunders stand out plainly, Though the job is bungled badly when your laboring is done, Though your friends may jeer and kid it, none the less you're proud you did it, As a carpenter you're awful—but you've had a lot of fun!

Then your labors grow more thrilling as you find you're getting skillful That you do not pound your fingers as you often used to do, When you know, beyond denying, that the task which you are trying May at least resemble something when your tinkering are through, Oh, you feel exceeding clever when the fruit of your endeavor Is a box or chair or table or a sofa or a shelf Which is near what you intended; and you whisper "Ain't it splendid?" As you stand around admiring what you fashioned by yourself!

Life can never be a glum thing for the man who's building something (When it isn't really labor but another form of play.) Give him rules and chalk, and pencils, give him tools and such utensils, And he'll have the sort of hobby which will drive his cares away. He will paint and he will plaster, he will do his best to master Every craft he ever heard of, with no thought of filthy self, Every tinker's job will lure him and there's nothing that will cure him Of the feverish endeavor to be making things himself! ## "JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES"

After licking Stoney, Jack turned his attention to Bill. "Come on, Bill," said he, "you're next." But Bill had started away. He didn't care to mix fists with a boy who could lick Stoney.

Then Jack helped Stoney up off the ground. "This ought to teach you a good lesson," said Jack. "Don't try to bully everyone you meet." Then he bid Stoney a cheery goodbye.

Jack looked around for his horse and found he had wandered into a farm yard. He went right in after him and found Flip, his faithful dog, also. The three started away again.

Jack was feeling fine after his fight and he let his horse gallop. Suddenly lightning shied at a huge sign. Jack hopped down and read it. His way was blocked. Continued.

DISCHARGED ENGINEER 'PUT BACK ON LEDGE'

Michael J. Ready, discharged from his position at the city ledge early this summer, was reinstated to his job by the board of public service at a meeting held late Saturday afternoon. Mr. Ready was fired by Supt. Doherty for alleged insubordination. The superintendent's action was upheld by the board, but Mr. Ready, through his attorney, Thomas L. Reynolds, brought civil action. Judge Pickman heard the case in district court and ordered reinstatement.

Two weeks ago the matter was referred to the city solicitor and at Saturday's meeting he agreed to whatever disposition Chairman Dennis J. Murphy and the other board members cared to make of it. Mr. Ready will assume his former work at wages being paid at the time of discharge.

Chairman Murphy made it clear that in all probability the ledge will not be worked next year, because it has been shown that the city can buy crushed stone cheaper than it can be turned out at home.

Street department bills were approved, except one of $1650 from L. P. Palmer for edge and circle stones.

THUG USED KNIFE ON LOWELL MAN

Joseph Seal of 542 Chalmers street, was treated at the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston last night for a knife wound in the upper right arm, the result of an altercation with a street corner thug in the Hub. It seems that Seal went to visit friends in Boston last evening and when he reached the corner of Auburn and Leverett streets, he got into an argument with a young man who, he claims pulled a knife on him. The police have not yet located the assailant.

Boomers for Big Hotel

found today. This is not the first time that an attempt has been made to ascertain the private views of the mercantile leaders of Lowell, as well as opinions on our hotel accommodation system from citizens who have the best interests of the Spauld City always at heart.

It can be said without fear of contradiction and just as emphatically as words will allow, that Lowell business men, great and small, from mill magnate and department store heads down to the vendors of small wares of every sort, believe that the time is now ripe for a get-together campaign to dispose of the problem that has so long plagued the city. Against the activities, wealth and progress of the city as a whole—the lack of decent hotel accommodations for Lowell citizens and Lowell visitors.

Here are the views of leading merchants of Lowell who represent the really and financially sound interests, closely allied with the prosperity of the city and its inhabitants every day in the year, and who conduct business matters that may be said to be the very life of the community from a commercial standpoint.

"We believe Lowell should wait, no longer in settling the hotel problem," said a Merchants street merchant today.

"Lowell has something to learn from Worcester, Springfield and other cities—even from smaller ones than these. No city today can attract really and financially sound business and prosper without adequate and reliable hotel accommodations at all times. An up-to-date, comfortable hotel serving top-notch foods and providing inviting accommodations in apartments that attract and delight and make the visitor stay longer, is what Lowell needs at the present time and what we believe we must have, if we are to keep up with the progressive cities of New England that are stepping along so swiftly and smoothly with excellent hotel accommodations in the city."

Real Estate Men: Boomers
A loan through the real estate office and light building statements. The land values of central Lowell would promptly increase, it is predicted, with the erection of a modern hotel in a convenient location comfortably close to the mercantile pulse of the municipality.

"You know that the values of real estate since the erection of three modern hotels in the city of Worcester within the past few years, have increased in many parts of the heart of the Commonwealth wonderfully?"
"The same thing would happen here in Lowell," said a real estate operator. "The city is devoted almost exclusively to handling mercantile properties in central sections of the city."

"Furthermore, with the advent of increased hotel patronage, through the bringing of conventions to Lowell—and of course our new Memorial Auditorium is going to be a wonderful aid to attract new comers to the city, too—there will come increased trading in all our busy lines of trade throughout the city. People who come here for convention purposes, or travel to Lowell on their way to the north or south and remain over night, if we have good hotel accommodations, spend money while they are here. This means something. There is no limit to the real profit a city secures from increased number of visitors and the flow of money that comes as a matter of course from the pockets of those who come to the town for recreation or business."

Builders interviewed, agreed that the new Auditorium was one of the most important aids to the new hotel proposition that has yet been found to command attention from a public too apt to "let things go as they are."

Many citizens feel that with the coming of notable opera stars and distinguished men and women guests in many other walks of life to Lowell for Auditorium gatherings where the people are to be entertained, the city is in more need of modern and commodious hotel accommodations than ever before.

The dry goods men naturally look to the larger hotel proposition as something that will mightily strengthen local trading conditions, and they are not backward in giving their views. Traveling men rarely remain over night in Lowell, as conditions now exist, preferring to journey either to Worcester or some other city providing good hotel accommodations. Said a retail dry goods merchant today:—
"A large hotel, say a six-story building with 100 good rooms or more, centrally located, not too far away from the main business areas, would pay from the start, in my frank opinion. There is no doubt about it."

"Scores of drummers come to Lowell every week, loaded down with sample cases. They never stay here over night—at least, very few of them do to my knowledge. Most of them hurry away at nightfall to Boston."

Other merchants spoke along this same line. Several said that good, well-lighted sample display rooms were needed by many visiting traveling men for the display of their wares.

Another dealer said if the salesmen had quarters provided for them in a larger hotel, where samples could be displayed regularly, more goods would be disposed of by the distribution of additional varieties of salable articles that could not be purchased through the meagre facilities now afforded for this important branch of modern business.

Hotel Site Vital Problem

The site for a new hotel is a vital problem, of course. Lowell merchants interviewed today declared they considered the territory in the John street section about as ideal as any for a new, roomy structure that would be handy to all patrons, whether passing guests, "regulars," traveling salesmen, women guests or convention delegates and "incidentals."

One or two business men believed that the hotel desired would "look better" if it could be built in some section of City Hall square, a modern hostelry there with a good-looking frontage adding to the general appearance of the area and being at the same time "in the heart" of the city proper.

Few business men would place the hotel near the railroad territory, although it is known that properties could easily be purchased now down along the rail lines on numerous streets running to the east and west and south.

Each Lowell man interested in securing better hotel accommodations for local inhabitants and visitors, agrees in centrally locating the hotel of the future.

the splendid part of the city now so greatly beautified by the erection of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium is also highly endorsed.

Almost anywhere along East Merrimack street can be found suitable locations for a hotel structure such as is desired by leading citizens today. While land values have increased some since the building of the Auditorium, it is said most emphatically that none of the properties that could be purchased are being held for anything more than fairly good real estate.

Many other business men outside the popular places of trading, agreed with their brethren in the city's commercial activities that a larger hotel, and a good one from top to bottom, with plenty of room to start with, is the very first thing that Lowell needs to boost business along into its proper stride locally from now on.

Manchester, N. H., is building one of the finest hotel structures in New England right now. Portland is coming along with another one in the spring; New York and New Jersey have the one and four hostels, not prospective, but realities within the past two years.

Theatrical Manager Talks

"Lowell will never be the city it ought to be and could be until it has a place where visitors may be entertained in style and in a pre-eminently the rule in other leading cities of the eastern section of the country," said a Lowell manager today.

"I can safely say, too—and I want to make this very emphatic—that if Lowell could provide better, more comfortable and roomy accommodations for members of traveling theatrical companies, we would be able to secure better attractions than has sometimes been the case in the past. The theatrical profession has spent Lowell 'off the map,' theatrically speaking, for a good many years. You know all about that. I am not getting any younger, and I am not getting any better hotel accommodations, some assurance that traveling thespians, who always like the best there is and always get it if it can be found, could be welcomed and harbored over night here without discomfort and hardships for things that are necessary for the comfort of these people who amuse us and rub the edges from our little melancholy moments. We would have better dramatic, comedy and operatic attractions right along; we would be spending more money in Lowell and would be as prosperous as some other cities I could mention on the New England circuits today."

Scores of conventions of labor unions, civic bodies, fraternal associations and benefit organizations galore, have been invited to Lowell, time without end, only to be obliged to decline the hearty welcomes because no hotel room could be found for delegates and guests, to say nothing of accommodations for invited speakers and entertainment talent sometimes accompanying large convention bodies.

With a modern hotel, Lowell could entertain thousands of motor tourists all seasons of the year. Hundreds of motorists pass through Lowell daily on their way north, south, east and west. Few tourists stop in this city over night, finding no hotel accommodations suitable for their needs.

Business men here, a Sun reporter today of numerous hotel and guest traveling motorists stopped in Lowell simply to inquire the way to Boston or Worcester, where more desirable hotel accommodations could be found. Lowell has been and should be, but is not at the present time a "half-way" stop for through passengers travelling by rail from New York city to Canadian points, and vice versa, railroad officials say. Today passengers rarely alight from through trains here except to purchase newspapers or to get from the station newsstand. Lowell business men say if a suitable hotel could be erected in the heart of the city, with accommodations enough for all desiring to partake of Lowell hospitality 365 days in the year, that a good many people traveling through Lowell either by train or auto would frequently stop here for rest and recreation over night, and sometimes several days at a time, depending upon the reception the visitors received and the way they were treated in the havens where transients, rich and poor, are cared for if they are respectable and have money enough to spend for desired hospitality.

The lack of hotel accommodations is never criticized quite so strenuously, probably, as during "Auto Show Week" in Lowell. That week certainly tests the caliber of the automobile rank and file. Not an extra room can be taken in the city hotels during that annual exhibition.

Boston visitors and automobile men from other New England cities, have always been in the habit of coming to Lowell by train or automobile, and hurrying right home again "after the show." Very few men engaged in the industry have a chance to remain more than 24 hours in the city, and then only as guests of Lowell business men engaged in the auto sales industry. It is difficult each year to find "room enough" to entertain the visiting automobile experts and magnates, much as Lowell automobile salesmen would like to do so, and this is not discounting one of the splendid services always extended to the visiting gentlemen of the "wheel circuit."

There is today a real revival of the "new hotel" proposition in Lowell. You can feel it all through the business districts of the city, hear the merchants and other interested citizens talking about it daily almost as much as they do about the weather or the baseball scores.

And this revival is likely to bring results before long, for no one with the best interests of the city at heart can deny that Lowell needs a vigorous dose of business revival medicine in the shape of a modern, commodious hotel building that would prove not only a genuine boon to Lowell as an up-to-date municipality, but a splendid addition to the future life and health activities, social and commercial, of the city as a whole.

Possibility of Conscription in Ireland

DUBLIN, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—The possibility of conscription in Ireland is considered in some quarters to have been forecast by Richard Mulcahy, the commander-in-chief, in the course of a speech to a division of the troops at Gormanstown, yesterday. "We in the Irish army look forward to our being a big national organization through which the young manhood of Ireland will pass for a brief space of time, and they will pass out much better men and better citizens," he said, "having during their period in the army done some useful constructive work for the country as well as having skilled themselves in the use of arms."

BENNINGTON, Vt., Oct. 9.—Mary Peterson, a nurse, and Beatrice Loomis, a maid, both employed at a hospital, here, were killed by Boston & Maine train last night when their automobile stalled on crossing at Hoosick, N. Y. Morris Peterson and Lovett Kinney, also of this city, jumped from the automobile and escaped injury.

Lifts Ban on Hunting in Maine

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 9.—Governor Baxter today rescinded the proclamation he issued last Wednesday, suspending the open season of hunting in Maine, four days after the deer season opened, because of the critical situation brought about by forest fires. He issued a warning against carelessness in building and extinguishing fires by hunters.

Drilled Well Saved State College, Pa.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 8.—A drilled well, 250 feet deep, that never lessened its water supply, saved the borough of State College from the 25 days' drought that apparently ended with showers Saturday. For a time rumors were circulated that the college would close because of the water shortage, but 300,000 gallons a day pumped from the well gave an almost normal supply to the 7500 residents and students of the community.

Woman Candidate for Congress

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Miss Lilly Darcy of New Bedford who was secretary to Judge Joseph Walsh while he served as congressman from the 16th district today filed papers for the republican nomination to fill the unexpired term. Judge Walsh resigned from his congressional seat after appointment to the superior court bench by Governor Cox. A primary election to fill the vacancy has been ordered for October 24.

Your Telephone World

"Why, I couldn't find his name in the telephone directory."

This is the reply I get occasionally, when I ask a subscriber why he didn't send a toll message, and thus quickly settle some important matter.

As it would be practically impossible to include in one book all subscribers to the Bell System, each book is designed to include a given territory within which there are numbers frequently called.

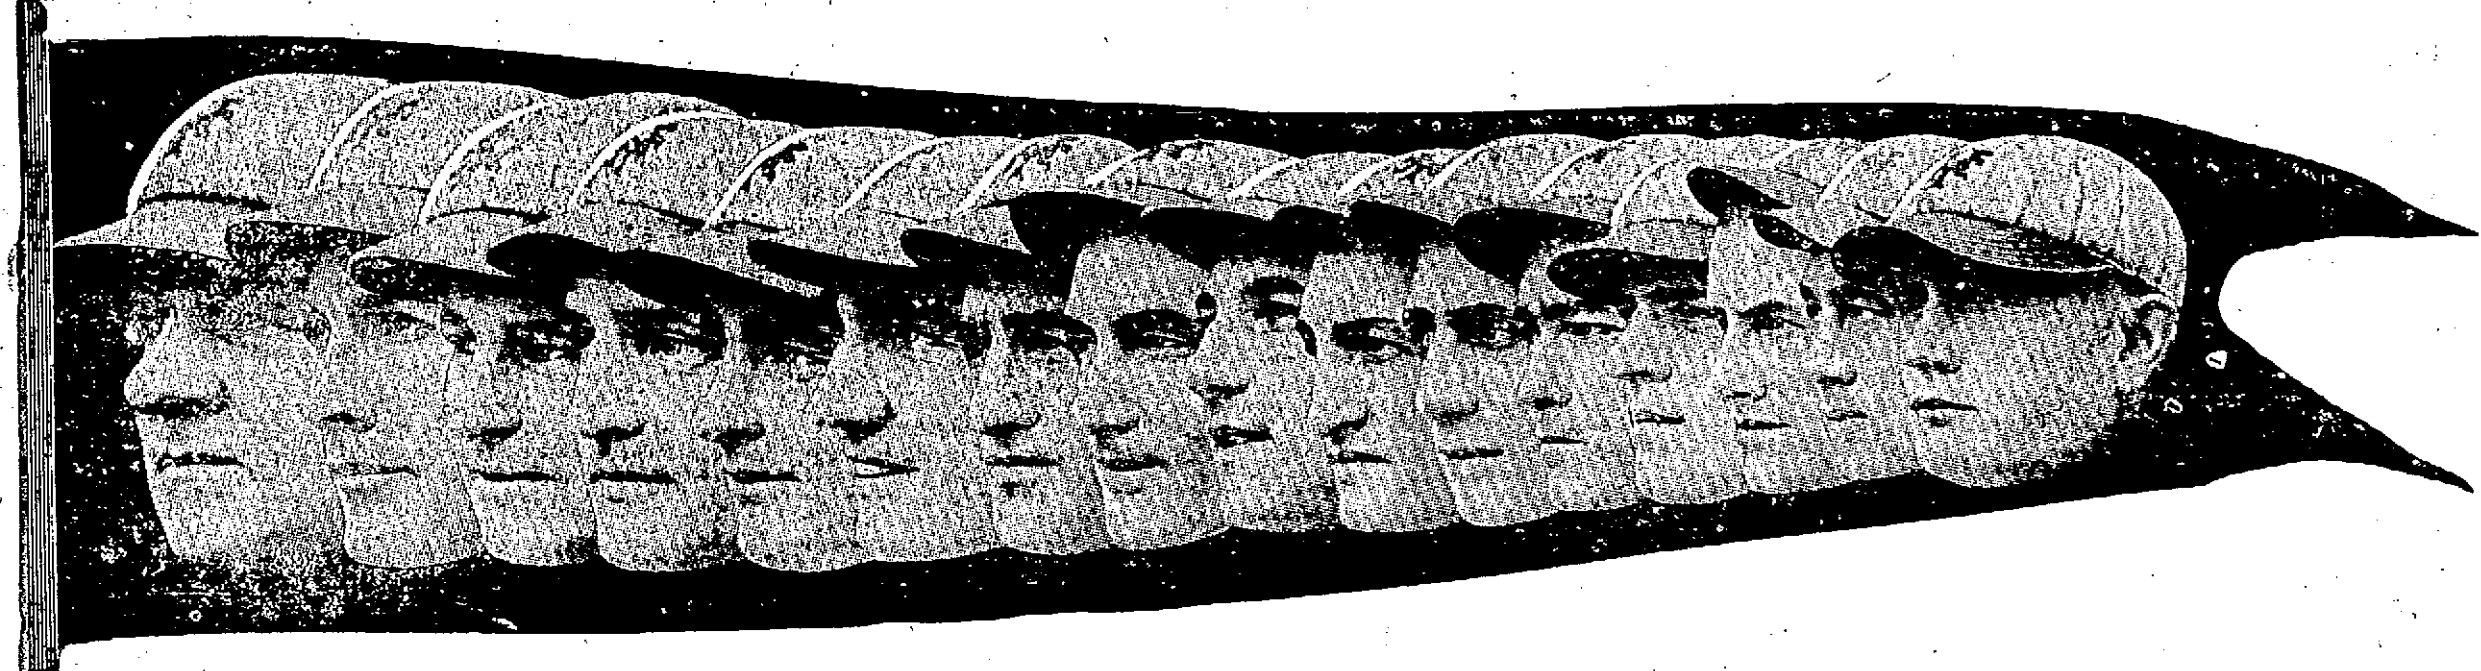

If a Bell subscriber who lives outside this territory is wanted, you can reach him quickly and easily even if his name and number do not appear in your telephone directory. Just ask for the Toll Operator and give her the name and address of the person you want to reach. If you make your call on a station-to-station basis you will save both time and money. It really makes no difference whether he is in Bangor, Sioux City or San Francisco—wherever he is, if within range of a telephone, he can be reached if he is connected to the Bell System.

The next time you want to reach some distant friend whose name you can not find in the telephone directory, just call the Toll Operator and tell her what you want. She will try to help you, and may be able to get a message to your friend, even though he has no telephone, and get him to a Public Telephone Station to talk to you.

PROVIDENCE TEAM TOO HEAVY FOR TEXTILE

The 1922 edition of the Lowell Textile school football team made its debut before local followers on the campus last Saturday afternoon. Coach Arthur Kelly's fighting eleven went down to glorious defeat at the hands of the heavy Providence college team by the score of 1 to 0. The heavy field and the still more slippery ground made it difficult for the Light-Loell team to withstand the attack of their opponents and though they held their own for three trying fumbles, the strain began to tell in a final chapter and the boys from Providence made the winning touchdown during the fourth quarter.

It was a hard game to lose from a tactical standpoint, but Providence deserved the victory even though they were forced to the limit to win. Much credit was given to the Providence team for their excellent play, and the fact that they were able to win a game so easily was a favorable impression on the part of the Light-Loell team. ## Three Giants and Three Yanks on Team That Will Tour Orient

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (By the Associated Press.)—At least three members of the New York Giants world champions and three of the New York Yankees, the winning team in the series that ended yesterday, will participate in the tour of the Orient that has been organized to further the growth of baseball beyond the Pacific.

While the official roster has not yet been completed for the party that will sail from Vancouver in time to reach Yokohama October 31, it is known that George Kelly, who hit home yesterday's home run for the Giants, will be on the team. Also, Arthur Neff, the only pitcher to win two games in the series, and Emil Meusel, the slugging outfielder, will go from the Orient.

From the Yankees will be Joe Bush, who pitched two losing games for his team, including that of yesterday; Walter Hoyt, the sensational boy pitcher, and Fred Hoffman, second string catcher.

Other players named to go are Tom Griffith of the Brooklyn club; Joe Sewell and Stephen of the Cleveland Indians; Amos Strunk and Earl Brown of the St. Louis Cardinals. Names of all the players who will go are expected to be announced very soon.

The tour is expected to be not only a profitable one for the players, but also a valuable one for the fans. The tour will include stops in Tokyo, Osaka, Kobe, Japan, Korea, Manchuria, China, Philippines, and Hawaii, returning to the United States early in February.

After a 10-minute intermission, play was resumed with Triggs punting to Olson, who ran it back to the 32-yard line before being downed. Olson failed to progress through center, but the play was gained by a pass through right tackle and an intercepted forward pass made fourth down. Brigham kicked out to Tarry on a 35-yard line, but a five-yard penalty for an off-side foul by Olson nullified the play. Substitution went in for Textile and received Pelenia's punt. Smith made a good play, but McGee recovered for Providence, running the remaining distance of the field for a touchdown, but the play was nullified owing to the fact that the Providence right tackle was reported as being off-side. ## Kelley's Single, Driving in Two Runs in Eighth, Overcomes Yankees' Lead and Giants Win Final Game by Score of 5 to 3—Huggins Ordered Bush to Pass Young to Get Kelly—Yanks Outgained and Outplayed and Failed to Win a Game in Big Classic

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) Just before the opening of the world series last Wednesday, John Joseph McGraw, sometimes called "Little Napoleon," said: "The club with the most consistent fighters wins the most ball games." His statement has been vindicated, even by the most conservative of experts, to have nothing more than a fighting chance of winning one game, battled through the finished masterpiece of the Yankees, won four games, lost one, and are still world champions.

Fighting Ability Won
From every approach that could be made on paper before the first game was played, the Giants were considered a badly beaten club. The figures said the Giants had but one reliable pitcher, that the Yankees had nothing else but unbeatable hurlers and that pitching had won every world series. But the record books were remiss. The index didn't even carry the caption: "Fighting ability." Few men in baseball besides "Little Napoleon" know how it is done. But he had found that quality in his ball players and he staked his pride that he could recognize it when he saw it.

The scene of yesterday's game, that decided the series for the nationals was 5 to 3, but that's only an incident. Exactly how it was done is a matter of detail. The Giants won that game and all the others they captured because they were the "most consistent fighters."

Of course the Giants have ability. Courage without skill in the last five days at the Polo Grounds would have been as useful as an unarmed dough-boy's column marching against a battery of big Berthas. No mean feat were the Yankees.

Kelly There in Pinch
It was courage and skill that enabled Long George Kelly to straighten out a Joe Bush fork ball in the eighth inning of the game yesterday when the Giants were one run behind and the bases were full with two out. He had been hit by Miller Huggins, the Yankee manager, who had ordered Bush to pass "Pep" Young to get a chance at the "easy mark."

That play was the climax of the game and the series, and will remain a matter of controversy. Some say Huggins was justified in having Young walked to get at Kelly. Many, including McGraw himself, say it was smart baseball. Long George was the weakest batter in the winning line up. Young was an almost hitting certainty. But Huggins didn't figure the human element that McGraw calls courage. The Yankee manager had expected his pitcher, Bush, to be a soldier. But Joe is a star and temperamental. Before the 40,000 fans he flouted his manager by plainly showing his disgust when he was ordered to pass Young to get at Kelly and shouted: "Aw, let's play baseball."

Giants Twice Overcome Yanks
At any rate, he was off his stride when Kelly came to bat. Huggins ordered him to walk. Then he shot one of his fast ones. Kelly, awkward and gaunt, bent over the plate. His lips were set. He gripped his bat tightly. He met the fast one squarely—the tying and winning runs scored.

As in two of the preceding games the Yankees gained a lead and then squandered it.

In the first, the Americans scored once on Dugan's single, Ruth's sacrifice bunt and Pipp's flur to center that went for a hit.

Cunningham Made Good
McGraw's men overcame this score in the second when Emil Meusel scratched a hit to Dugan. Young walked, Kelly sacrificed and Cunningham sent both runners in with a single to center. The Yankees tied the count in the fifth. Ward walked, Scott singled to right, Bush's single to right scored Ward.

The Americans took the lead in the seventh when Meusel homered a hit to Groh, went to second on Schang's sacrifice, to third on a wild pitch by

CADETS BEAT INDIANS

Belvidere Eleven Plays Whirlwind Game and Wins Out by Score of 14 to 6

The youthful O.M.I. Cadet football team won out over the veteran Indian eleven in a whirlwind game at Shedd park yesterday afternoon. By the score of 14 to 6, the Cadets defeated the Indians in a game that was a real contest.

The game opened with the Indians receiving the kick-off. McIntyre took the ball and ran it back twelve yards, after three unsuccessful attempts to penetrate the Cadet line. Donnellan punted to the 45-yard line where the Indians took the ball on downs. After the first play, McIntyre carried the ball, recovering for the Cadets. With the ball in their possession, the Cadets started down the field, uncovring an aerial game that the Indians completely surprised.

The second period opened with the Indians kicking off. McIntyre recovered the ball on the 33-yard line and with the most sensational run of the game carried the pilskin to the Indian 15-yard line, running through the entire Indian line with the exception of one man, Gleason, who carried him down with a spectacular tackle. The Cadets were held for two downs here but the third play, a forward pass, D. O'Connor to Curran, was successfully executed and Curran carried the ball through the Indian backfield for a touchdown. D. O'Connor kicked the goal after touchdown. After this play, Gleason, the crushing full-back of the Indians, was for the Cadets. With the ball in their possession, the Cadets started down the field, uncovring an aerial game that the Indians completely surprised.

TO ROOT FOR DOWNES

Big Delegation Coming From Boston—Boyle in Fine Fettle—Boxing Notes

At least two hundred South Boston fans will come to Lowell on Columbus day to root for Johnny Downes in his bout with Phinney Boyle. Already the Boston contingent has made application for reservations and they are organizing auto parties for the holiday trip.

Boyle has been training diligently ever since the last meeting which resulted in the Lowell boy being awarded the bout when Downes refused to continue in the fourth round. He has been on the road about every day and he also put in much work in the gymnasium.

Downes, according to word from Boston, has trained more carefully for the coming bout than any other, with the possible exception of his bout with Johnny Dundee in Mechanics building. Boston, several months ago. He has worked out every day for the past week with Eddie Shavlin. Now that Shavlin has finished up his work, Downes has begun to work out with young Tansy, Tommy Leahy and Willie Corbett.

With a chance to meet Jack Britton, world welterweight champion as an incentive, Eddie Shavlin and Dave Shade will meet in Boston tonight. This is one of the most important bouts between welterweights of the season and indications point to a record turnout.

Billy Murphy of the Acre is in fine condition for his Boston debut, which will come on Friday night. Originally it was planned to run the bout on tomorrow night, but a postponement has been ordered. Murphy is to meet Johnny Lard. In an earlier bout preceding the Jack Malone-Johnny Karr main event.

MEETING OF POLO LEAGUE IN BOSTON

Six cities were represented at an enthusiastic meeting of the National Polo League, held at the Coppley hotel in Boston, yesterday afternoon. William P. Cronin, of Worcester, president of the league, presided.

James Donnelly of Lawrence, Knobby Keweenaw of Salem, Harry Grafton of Portland, Me., and a trio from Providence, Tom Kilgus, Bill Deveron and Jack Finnell.

The meeting voted to adopt the Victor ball for use in all games during the season and a committee to draw up the schedule of games was named as follows: William P. Cronin, of the Providence Journal, William P. Cronin, of the Lowell Sun and Frank Da Silva of Portland.

Adjournment was taken to 12 o'clock, the meeting to convene at 3 o'clock in the Coppley hotel.

SHIFTING GEARS DONE POORLY

The average motorist does not know how to shift gears.

This is the conclusion reached after a series of tests recently conducted by the Iowa State college in co-operation with the National Research Council. Especially when he takes a hill the average motorist shifts his gears improperly, and these experts say that the motorist waits too long to shift from high to second on a hill, says the observers. They lose speed, overtax their engines and consume more gasoline. The general admonition, not to slow down to less than 3.5 miles an hour, they found is really a bad idea. The tests also showed that in descending a hill, it is cheaper to retard the speed with the brake than by leaving the clutch in.

WORK RUSHED ON 35,000 TON ICE PLANT

The echoes of busy workmen's voices and the sounds of hammers, saws and machinery fill the air these days in the village in the woods, as the cozy little summer colony in the forest about the shores of historic Harp's pond—sometimes called Baptist pond—is known to residents of the neighborhood just outside the village of South Chelmsford.

Beginning today, "full speed ahead" was the order that went out to about 25 workmen, including a quartet of expert building carpenters, who are putting in the foundation for a new 35,000-ton capacity ice house close to the shores of the well known body of water that already provides each year thousands of tons of ice for the people of Lowell and nearby towns.

The big Daniel Gage ice houses are just across the water from the new plant now being put up, but Baptist pond is no tiny sheet of water and, in the words of a Gage foreman, "there is room for all."

The new 35,000-ton ice storage, to be erected and made ready for filling on or about Nov. 1, is only a "paper plant" now, but soon the builders will finish that foundation, the big beams will be placed in position and the timbers will go up for the sheathing.

ing, clapboards, roof and covering materials.

Just now the work consists of preparing the immense area, removing forest growths and stumps, leveling the woodlands and staking out the building site.

A great deal of work has been done during the past week with a small force of men. Today the work was renewed with additional workmen, and the building campaign will be carried on, rain or shine, without a let-up.

Already some of the huge quantities of machinery for the bringing of ice blocks from the pond has arrived on the long, new railroad siding. Immense shipments of lumber of all kinds are piled up in the woodlands close to the new storage foundations, ready for the carpenters.

One car just arrived contains the new hoisting gallery—the big chain with the latest modern attachments that are to be used to carry the ice cakes up the long runway and away into the new seven-compartment ice house next winter. This "big chain" is 300 feet long, an extra size for this new plant. It is wonderful in make-up, but works smoothly with a simple lever that a child could operate.

The woodland all about the new ice plant has just been cleared by wood-choppers, stumps and workmen familiar with the method of clearing away lumber acreages and leveling ground. Hundreds of cords of wood had to be cut and carted away to provide room for the ice house buildings.

Numerous roads have been built and are being built from the Chelmsford Carline highway to give free access to the grounds where the construction gangs are working. Several new buildings for storing equipment have just been finished. There is a new barn for the stabling of horses, tools and other necessary equipment.

Just across the way a "big hole" has been "notched" out of a section of scrub oak, pine and other wood. It is the home of a two and one-half story house for the superintendent of this future ice plant, Walter I. Bachelder. And the "super" has his hands full overseeing the construction work on the new home he and his family are to occupy in the days to come, and also supervising just across the country woodland road the ice house construction.

This "house in the woods," for that describes it accurately, is to be entirely modern in every way. It has a 22 by 30 foundation plan, and will contain seven rooms, a bath room, commodious cellar area and the usual conveniences that go with modern home construction.

The smaller ice plant, nearby located on a section of the land now controlled by the Metropolitan people of Boston, was started a year ago by the New Bedford Ice company, which sold out not long ago to the Boston concern after a hard-luck experience at ice-harvesting. The 6000-ton storage building collapsed when only partly filled during the big ice storm last winter. This required another large outlay of money and the Burns River Ice company, controlling the New Bedford project, finally gave up the job as an investment that could not be completed with resources at hand. Then came the sale to the Metropolitan people and the beginning of this new building project, which is to help supply metropolitan Boston with ice from Baptist pond beginning next winter.

The Metropolitan people are wholesalers only, handling great quantities of ice each year, with supplies coming from many New England territories. The company has many large ice contracts, supplying, for instance, beef merchants, refrigerating cars and retail ice merchants. The headquarters are located at No. 18 Commercial wharf, Boston.

The new ice house to be erected on the shores of Baptist pond in South Chelmsford is to be 200 by 32 feet in size, and will contain seven "rooms" for storage. Later on it is the Metropolitan's plan to enlarge this storage equipment here to 50,000 tons capacity. A new spur track is already in, and there is a possibility of another one coming along in the near future.

The new ice plant is to give employment to Chelmsford residents to the number of from 10 to 20 workmen the year around, Supt. Bachelder said today. Preference, of course, will be given to citizens of the town, as Mr. Bachelder intends to make the town his home in the future, and he prefers "home talent" when he supervises jobs of this kind.

E. F. ALBEE HONORED ON 65TH BIRTHDAY

Yesterday marked the sixty-fifth birthday anniversary of Mr. E. F. Albee, president and head of the vast B. F. Keith vaudeville organization.

All over the country his friends, associates, followers and admirers have been planning a special observance of his birthday. To all of these friendly suggestions he has said: "No." In spite of that, however, the managers of his numerous theatres have wired their felicitations. Manager Pickett of the local theatre, regards Mr. Albee as a worthy successor to B. F. Keith, the founder of the vaudeville circuit. Just at present Mr. Albee is busily engaged with the details of opening three splendid new theatres—the most palatial yet constructed—one in Cleveland and the others in Dayton and Brooklyn.

Mr. Albee recently won many encomiums through the presentation of a noble portrait of Edwin Booth through the International Rotarians to the Shakespeare memorial gallery at Stratford-on-Avon. To this event and in full understanding of Mr. Albee and his large ideals, they rallied the foremost artists, writers and managers of England, France, Italy and America.

U. S. Warship Ordered to Near East

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A Central News despatch from Gibraltar today says the admiral and officers of the United States dreadnought Utah, who are touring Spanish cities, have been recalled to the warship, which has been ordered to proceed immediately to the Near East.

A Gibraltar despatch on Oct. 3, reported the arrival there of the Utah, with Vice Admiral A. T. Long, commander-in-chief of the European station. It was stated he would await the arrival of the cruiser Pittsburgh, which sailed from Philadelphia, Oct. 2, and which would then become the flagship of the American naval forces in European waters, proceeding to the Near East, while the Utah would return to American waters.

British View on U. S. Liquor Ban

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—The ruling of Attorney-General Daugherty in Washington, prohibiting liquors on vessels within American waters will give rise to no international complications, according to the view expressed by British foreign office officials today. The government's view, according to these authorities, is that the matter is one in which the United States has a perfect right to take any action it sees fit.

To Create Near East Emergency Fund

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Creation of a Near East emergency fund with an appeal for nation-wide contribution to relieve distress among the thousands of refugees in the Near East through the joint administration of the American Red Cross and the Near East relief has been authorized by President Harding. A special committee to raise the fund, headed by former Postmaster General Hays, was announced by the president yesterday. A special appeal for funds, the president's announcement said, would be made during the roll call of the American Red Cross in November.

Test Constitutionality of Maternity Law

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Massachusetts' request for permission to test the constitutionality of the federal maternity law was granted today, by the supreme court and the process ordered returned on January 2, 1923.

Massachusetts attacked the law on the grounds that it "usurped authority belonging to the states and established a system of government whereby certain governmental functions are performed by co-operation between the federal government and said states," from which Massachusetts is excluded by reason of its assertion of its sovereign rights. To accomplish the encroachment upon state rights, the federal government, Massachusetts asserted, offered to make available an appropriation conditioned upon expenditures by the different states, and their co-operation in giving effect to the law.

FOREIGN TRADE REPORT ISSUED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Increasing exports of manufactures, but decreasing shipments of raw materials and foodstuffs in August are shown in foreign trade reports issued today by the commerce department. Exports of manufactures for August aggregated $140,000,000, compared with $112,000,000 in August a year ago. Imports of manufactures totalled $101,000,000 as against $75,000,000 in August, 1921.

Raw materials exported during August were $45,000,000 against $55,000,000 a year ago. Imports for the month amounted to $110,000,000 compared with $72,000,000 in August of last year.

August foodstuffs shipments aggregated $107,000,000 against $172,000,000 during the same month a year ago.

PAINS IN BACK?

Listen to What Mr. McCay Says About It.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"For several years I had been subject to severe pains in my back, which often became so intense that I was compelled to cease work for days at a time. I could hardly walk. I feared I was about to lose my health or experience a general breakdown. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets on Saturday night and in less than twenty-four hours all trace of pain had completely gone, and although I was now now elated I have never felt the slightest return of the pain. I was pleased to recommend Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets to any one whose condition may be similar."—Henry J. McCay, 100 Milton St., (Greenpoint), N. Y. But Kelly broke the law of baseball strategy and hit. That was bad luck for the Yankees and a great bit of work by our first baseman.

The Giants have fought their hardest throughout the series, and fighting has been the key to their success. They are reaching, so have the Yankees, but the breaks and we took advantage of them."

There isn't any quibbling about the Yankees' hurler, Huggins. "We were whipped soundly, and well and mostly through our own faults. John McGraw is a great ball team. His men have been hitting him. He has given me an opportunity to score during the series. They didn't throw a chance away."

Huggins Defends More

In yesterday's game, when Huggins was in trouble in the 8th, I ordered him to pass Young because I thought he had been hit. Kelly had been the worst batter of the Nationals; he is a right-handed batter and it was sound strategy, I think, to pass Young and let Kelly come in. To be lying and
